Gas Meter Saved Lives of Mother and Her Children

MEDFORD, Oct. 3.—A 25-cent gas meter, which automatically cut off the supply from the tenement of John J. Hickey on the second floor of the four-story block, 12 Harvard avenue, West Medford, was the means of preventing a tragedy yesterday afternoon, which would have cost the lives of Mrs. Hickey and her three small children, Anna, aged 4, Margaret, aged 2½ years, and the 4-months-old baby, John J. Hickey, Jr.

The indications point to an attempt of Mrs. Hickey to make way with herself and her children on account of despondency over the fact that her husband was out of work and money and had been heavily drinking for the past five days.

The mother and three children were discovered unconscious in the bedroom with the gas valve wide open at 1:50 yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Frederick J. Lewis and Thomas M. Hutchinson, who forced open the rear entrance to the tenement on being notified by his wife of the fact that she had been coming from the bedroom since early morning.

The mother and children were undressed and in bed and the gas had evidently been turned on some time during the night.

A five-foot tube running from the gas meter under the bed close to Mrs. Hickey's head was found lying over her shoulder.

The doors were all closed tightly and fastened and a broken pane of glass in one window was closed up with a piece of an apron. Considerable gas escaped from this opening, which is believed to have been made by Mrs. Hickey, who tried to get into the house Thursday evening.

The gas escaping from the opening was detected by other occupants of the block at 9:30 yesterday morning, but nothing was thought of it until noon, when the door of the Hickey tenement was found locked and no response was made to repeated knockings and calls. The patrolman himself was almost overcome by gas when he first got the door open by breaking the glass pane. He found Mrs. Hickey who is a woman of 30, lying in bed with her nightdress on, and the gas tube from the jet lying near her mouth. The 4-months-old baby was underneath her as if she had been nursing it.

The oldest of the children, Anna, was on the floor beneath the bed, close to which was a crib in which the other child, Margaret, was found with her head hanging out between the slats.

With the aid of Mr. Hutchinson the policeman opened up the windows and passed the children out to Mrs. Richard Skane, who occupies the tenement upstairs and medical aid summoned.

Dr. Walter Bean, a member of the board of health, and Dr. John Robinson responded quickly and set to work to save the lives of the children and their mother. Dr. Robinson attended to Mrs. Hickey, who was in a serious condition and did not regain consciousness up to 10 o'clock last night. Dr. Bean devoted his attention to the children, the oldest of whom was in the worst condition. The children recovered consciousness after an hour and were well on the road to recovery last night.

A sad feature connected with the discovery of the mother and her three children was the arrival of the husband just after Dr. Robinson had started to save the life of his wife. He realized what had happened and frantically kissed his wife as she lay unconscious in the bedroom. He was led away upstairs, but became so troublesome and defiant that he was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Lewis at 5 o'clock this afternoon and locked up at the police station.

54 NEW NAMES

HAVE BEEN ADDED TO THE VOTING LIST

Fifty-four new names were added to the voting list in the registration of the afternoon and evening. The registration by wards was as follows:

Ward 1, nine; ward 2, eight; ward 3, eight; ward 4, three; ward 5, four; ward 6, six; ward 7, three; ward 8, seven; ward 9, six. Total, 54.

At the annual meeting of Co. K last night, at the Westford street armory, this city, Second Lieut. Charles A. Stevens tendered his resignation. He is about to move from Lowell. He has been a member of the company since its organization and was a highly valued and popular member of the rifle team of the company. When First Lieut. Colby resigned from the company some months ago, and Lieut. Rogers was raised to the first lieutenancy, Lieut. Stevens was elected to his present rank, and since taking on the duties of his commission proved himself an unusually able officer. He will be missed from the militia and also from the city, where he proved himself a highly esteemed citizen.

Beginning Friday evening, Oct. 9, with a preliminary service, the pastors and chorists of Centralville and Draught will engage in a five-week series of special services. Each church will observe the preparatory service by itself, as also each Sunday.

On Sunday, Oct. 4, the First Spiritualist society will resume its meetings in Graton hall, 212 Merrimack street, services being held at 2:30 and 7 p. m.

At a gathering of the young people of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Thursday evening, it was voted that a body be formed to assist in the social work of the church, and the name "Westminster Social Circle" was adopted. The following officers were elected to serve one year: President, William Bartlett; vice president, Miss Grace Common; secretary, Miss Christina Campbell; treasurer, James Brown.

The first social meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Anne's church will take place in the parish rooms Monday evening.

ANNUAL BANQUET

Of Bunting Club Held Last Night

The annual banquet and distribution of prizes of the United States Bunting Cricket and Athletic Association was held last night at the spacious clubhouse in North Lowell. The members turned out in large numbers as did their friends.

The interior of the clubhouse was very prettily decorated for the occasion, but the principal decoration was the pennant which the cricket team won in the Merrimack Valley Cricket league, which occupied a prominent position on one of the side walls.

Covers were laid for 150 and there wasn't a vacant place when the exercises were opened. Secretary Fred C. Humphreys, in charge of the arrangements, and it was due in large part to his supervision that the function proved so great a success.

The executive committee, with the mayor, candidates for state and city offices, and other guests, were seated at the head table. The Bunting orchestra occupied seats in close proximity, from which vantage point its members discoursed sweet music, while knives and forks clattered an accompaniment.

Previous to seating the gathering, President Robertshaw introduced Joseph Ellis as the toastmaster of the evening.

After the inner man had been satisfied the post prandial exercises were opened, and the following toasts of merit: "City of Lowell," E. B. Conant; "Commonwealth of Massachusetts," Sen. J. W. Holmes; "Bunting Club," F. G. Humphreys; "The Press," Lawrence Cummings; "Merrimack Valley Cricket League," George Ensey.

An informal program followed the regular list, among the speakers being the following: James Stuart Murphy, Rep. James E. O'Donnell, ex-Alderman John Daly and Councilmen Wilda and Fairwright.

Secretary Humphreys, who is retiring from the office which he has held for a long time, spoke at length of the club and its excellent work.

AN OUTRAGE UPON THE DEMOCRACY.

Not for many years has the democracy of the Fifth congressional district been so deeply disgraced as it was yesterday in Associate hall, when a coterie of so-called democrats from Lowell and Lawrence carried out a conspiracy to nominate Hon. Butler Ames, the present congressman, as the candidate of the democracy.

The movement was led by Daniel J. O'Brien, backed by Andrew A. Gray, Jeremiah Murphy of Lowell, William King and others, of Lawrence.

It appeared that a certain number of delegates had arranged to capture the convention. They worked upon a preconcerted plan, in which they were apparently the tools, if not, as Humphrey O'Sullivan characterized them, the hirelings of the republican party.

In spite of their conspiracy and their snap methods, it is likely that their action may be declared illegal on account of having overlooked certain legal formalities, such as the reading of the call and the notification of delegates as to the time and place of holding the convention.

The loyal democrats in the convention protested, of course, but without avail.

Humphrey O'Sullivan denounced the action of the miscreants in strong language; he charged them with being in the pay of the republican party and with being party traitors, all of which he considered fully justified in view of their conduct.

While party government is a necessity there must be party discipline. Men who undertake to sell out their party or betray it into the hands of the opposition should be promptly expelled so that they will not have an opportunity to repeat the offense.

The one Lowell man who disgraced himself most of all in the public eye is Daniel J. O'Brien, a man who has been the recipient of signal honors from the democratic party and who took the lead in having the convention nominate Ames, and thereby tacitly relinquish democratic principles, approve and endorse republican policies.

Next to Mr. O'Brien, Jerry Murphy, a liquor dealer, appeared to be responsible for the action of the Lowell delegates. What reward he expects may be easily guessed.

The Lawrence bunch came well organized for the purpose of nominating Ames, and the man at their head was "Billy" King, who, we understand, is chairman of the democratic city committee of Lawrence and an ex-alderman. If he represents the democracy of Lawrence then the party in the down river city is victimized by cuckoos, grafters, traitors, hoodlums and renegades, same as that of Lowell, and the remedy that is called for in Lowell should be applied also to the democratic thugs of Lawrence.

In criticizing the action of these delegates, we have no reflection to make on Congressman Ames beyond the fact that he is a good republican and a slick politician; but this attempted capture of a democratic convention by his friends will not stand to his credit as an advocate of honorable methods. That he is also a good fellow, personally, will not mitigate the offense of leaving the democrats of the district without a candidate.

It was only the day previous that Mr. Ames made a speech in a republican convention denouncing democratic candidates and democratic policies. To give him a democratic nomination under such circumstances was to endorse his views and his denunciation of the democratic party, something that must brand the democrats who would do such a thing as a lot of political renegades.

In nominating a republican for congress, the convention betrayed the cause of democracy barred the door against democratic victory or democratic protest, and in a spirit of the most abject toadyism and the basest ingratitude, crawled to the footstool of a political opponent and in the name of the democratic party turned over to him the democratic nomination for congress just as if no democrat could be found able or willing to represent the district, or as if the party had decided to repudiate all it had stood for in the past, to surrender ignominiously and go over bag and baggage to the camp of the republican party!

These democratic traitors may say they did this as a matter of political expediency in recognition of Mr. Ames' services in congress; but the rank and file of the democratic party will never accept any such bluff and rightly or not will never have any other opinion than that the delegates who voted for Ames delivered the nomination for a consideration, financial or otherwise.

It would have been amusing had it not been disgraceful to hear Mr. O'Brien while performing an act of political perfidy boasting of his democracy, forsooth!

There may have been some ground for assuming that no democrat could defeat Mr. Ames, but nobody had any right to assume any such thing. Even if Mr. Ames were invincible, that would not justify his endorsement by a democratic convention. The prohibition party can scarcely ever hope for victory in a national or state election, but it nominates its ticket in order that those who believe in its principles may have the opportunity to register their protest at the polls. It never endorses any saloon candidate. The socialists and the labor parties do the same thing without any hope of success, and if they endorsed the candidates of another party there would be no further excuse for their existence, and so it is with the democratic party. When some coterie of weak-kneed politicians see no prospect of victory does that justify their scuttling the democratic ship and renouncing democratic principles? Is such action characteristic of the record of the old fighting Fifth? Alas, ye hypocrites and cowards!

There was a time when some whitewashed democrats pandered to the county ring to the extent of endorsing the candidates for registrar and county sheriff; but when the custom was broken up and democratic candidates nominated, the ring lost its sense of security and was much more cautious about entering into corrupt deals. So would it be with the republican congressman, if the democrats put up a good clean candidate against him. The republican majority has been overcome before and will be again for who can tell but that even at the present time the congressman may have lost the support of a section of his own party?

Who can tell what may come up between now and election day to cause a democratic landslide?

In order to vindicate the democratic party, therefore, we assert that every delegate who voted for the nomination of Ames in yesterday's convention should be expelled from the democratic party at the earliest moment. Let them go over to the party to which Mr. Ames belongs, so that they can extol his services and his statesmanship without giving offense to anybody, without betraying any party, and without branding themselves as an aggregation of renegades. The only expression the summary expulsion of these democrats can elicit from the rank and file of the party will be one of general satisfaction and approval, couched in some such phrase as "good ridance, it serves them right." That is what the republican party would do if it had been so outraged, and unless the democratic party maintains some discipline that will prevent such an act of political treachery by a lot of grafters and freebooters, as was witnessed in yesterday's convention, it can never hope to assert its full strength or to win the victories that it could otherwise easily achieve.

There is good ground for the belief that the convention of yesterday can be easily proved to have been invalid on legal grounds and that the stigma that would otherwise be placed on the democracy of the Fifth district may be thus obliterated by the nomination of a democratic candidate for congress in opposition to Mr. Ames, the republican.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE CHRONIC PRODIGAL

The prodigal son returned one day. From the city's whirl, to the fields of hay.

He was haggard and worn; he had aged ten years.

Since he fled from the care of the hogs and steers.

But his clothes were cut in the latest style.

And he looked at things with a bored hard smile.

When the neighbors said: "He's come home to die."

He drawled: "I came home to sleep—that's why."

Next morning he gazed, with a gleeful laugh.

At his dad, who was chasing the fatted calf.

"Oh let him alone!" cried this wayward son.

"He seems to have trained for the two-mile run.

Just pick me a salad—I don't like yeast I never was strong for a country meal—

And a couple of chops and some coffee, dad."

Thus ordered the prodigal, thin-faced lad.

He stayed a month and he slept a lot. In the open air, on the spare room cot.

And his cheeks filled out, with a ruddy hue.

In the sun-kissed days and the twilight dew.

Then the city called, and his dad said: "Jack."

When ye git wore out, ye kin come right back."

And they saw him leave them, without a tear.

For they knew he'd return like that, next year.

DISGUST AT ROOSEVELT'S ANTICS

Providence Tribune: Having furnished abundant proof that he is fond of turbulence and surprises it may occur to President Roosevelt that he can create a profound sensation throughout the country, by far the greatest sensation of the campaign, by refraining from active participation in the contest for a week. And he could, of course, double the dimensions of that sensation by keeping out of the struggle for a fortnight. Just at present he has apparently taken over the management of the affairs of both the leading parties. He is denouncing Senator Foraker, lecturing Mr. Bryan, defending Mr. Taft, explaining his own politics and reviewing his own record. In other words, President Roosevelt is doing precisely what he was expected to do, what it was confidently predicted he would do when the campaign opened, despite the announcement that he would not take the stump. He is in danger of overplaying his "card." If he wants to send a real thrill through the vast audience he will resort to the unexpected.

ROOSEVELT'S FALSIFICATION

Worcester Post: If there is any sense anywhere in the Taft campaign management it ought to find some way to check off Mr. Roosevelt. For to say nothing of the larger aspects of it, his reckless vituperation cannot fail to hurt the cause among people who have appreciation of the deceptions of life, and his fairly impudent juggling of facts, so plain that a boy in his teens can discern, exhibits only faith in the limitless capacity of the people for humbug.

A sample is where he said yesterday that only four prosecutions were brought by the last Cleveland administration "under the anti-trust law," while under him, there has been a "mass of them," of which he enumerates nine, and 49 indictments under the Elkins act, not passed till 1903.

Neither in fact nor in implication are his statements correct. Olney and the Cleveland administration instituted more actions than he says, as is shown by the annual reports of the attorney-general. It fought through and developed what little virtue there is in the Sherman act, from which the supreme court exempted manufacturing businesses. It fought the railroad discrimination cases under the act of 1887 until the courts took all the starch out of the law, which then it took six years of republican rule to amend by the Elkins act with its fatal loophole as developed in the Standard oil case, and four years more for further amendment, and then really achieved by the democrats of the senate.

Moreover, out of 205 trusts now existing, there were at the close of the Cleveland administration, according to John Moody's Manual, the standard authority, only 41. The way they thence over is their answer to his talk about his "policies," not to mention the Paul Morton scandal, the beef trust's "immunity bath" and compromise, and so on. He has to admit that no one has gone to prison under the criminal sections of the law, and only obtained $100,000 fines collected in seven and a half years of $200,000 a year—which they may well regard as a pretty cheap license for the $1,500,000 a year they have taken in tribute or waste from the country. Such results from all the noise he has made hardly qualify him to abuse predecessors.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Marshall O. Leighton, chief hydrographer of the United States geological survey, will, through the forthcoming report of the inland waterways commission, recommend the impounding of the waters of the Ohio river at a cost of $125,000,000, and submit figures tending to prove that the spending of that vast sum would be more than warranted because of the benefits that would follow. Mr. Leighton admits to two hobbies—the use of water power rather than steam engendered energy, and the prevention of the pollution of the nation's flowing streams. Urged to give reasons warranting such vast appropriations, he placed the preservation of the rapidly disappearing coal supply as one, the lengthening of the navigation season as another, the generation of a vast quantity of cheap power as another, and the prevention of disastrous floods as still another.

Rebori came to the institute as a special student in 1906. Last year he was one of the five architectural students of the final competition for the Beaux Arts award. He is now on his way to England, where he will make extensive trips on a bicycle, then going to Belgium, northern France, Italy and Rome. He is to send back sketches at regular intervals, and on reaching Rome will enter the Roman academy, where he will complete the larger drawings. These will be sent back to and become permanent property of the institute of Technology.

There seems to be a feeling in London that Miss Terry's memoirs have virtually put an end to the various projects for a memorial to Irving. The feeling that she has pictured with exceeding intimacy and exceeding truth now seems to the English public, and especially to his fellow-players, sufficiently honored. ## FURS, FEATHERS AND FURBELOWS FROM PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Balloon parties are all the rage here at the gay capital, and we go "up in the air" with the greatest nonchalance, quite as if it were the usual means of locomotion. For the moment the automobile has ceased to be the excitement of our lives, and an invitation to motor out to dinner at one of the many restaurants near Paris is not as smart as a "bid" to take a trip in an airship. In these days of ballooning and aeroplaning the name of the two famous brothers Montgolfier is frequently mentioned. At school we were taught that these brothers were the inventors of the balloon, but now we are told on the highest authority that the invention is due not to the Montgolfiers, but to a Brazilian called Gusmao. We are even reluctantly forced to admit that this statement is correct, and as Gusmao will henceforth take the place of the two great Ancey paper manufacturers a few words relative to the Brazilian gentleman's career may prove interesting.

Brought up by the Jesuits, he came to Europe in 1655. John V. of Portugal appointed him almoner at his court, but the youth, of an inventive temperament, devoted his leisure hours to constructing a flying machine, no more and no less than have the Mf. Wright, Farman and Von Zeppelin. In 1709 he informed his royal master that he had constructed a machine capable of traveling through the air, and the monarch, who felt interested in the youth, not only patented the discovery, but allowed him a pension. On Aug. 5 of the same year Gusmao made his first public attempt to "fly." Thousands of people, among them members of the royal family, had come to witness the performance, which took place over the Casa de India, in Lisbon. The balloon rose slowly and, having floated for awhile gracefully in the air, knocked against one of the cornices of the Casa and fell heavily to the ground. But this mishap did not prevent the crowd from being deeply impressed by what they had witnessed. If, however, Senhor Gusmao had reckoned upon being cheered he was much mistaken. The spectators crossed themselves devoutly, and the next day when he showed himself in the streets everybody avoided him, and the little boys pelted him with stones. The king therefore advised his prototype to discontinue his experiments, which explains the fact that at the time few persons in Europe knew anything about the invention. In 1724 he died penniless in one of the hospitals of Toledo. Fifty-eight years later the balloon of the brothers Montgolfier, which was the exact reproduction of that of Gusmao, floated over the city of Avignon. Now, having aired all my knowledge concerning the history of the balloon, you will probably be more interested in hearing of the wonders in millinery as set forth by the artists who make headgear a specialty.

Favorite Hats of the Hour.

There is no disputing the fact that broad brimmed hats are to enjoy a complete triumph in the winter. The best milliners of the Rue de la Paix have sent out their advanced models, and all of them are broad and flat of brim and very low in the crown. In a greenish blue hue a subtle skin encircles the very low, broad crown, and is almost exactly the shape of the old world toscan "flop," the only difference being that the big hats of today are lightly wired so that they retain their shape. They are either entirely flat in the brim, wider at the sides than in the front and back, or they are of a uniform width all round, with a distinct dip back and front. It is interesting to know that hats of this order are to be worn with tailored suits that are not too severe in outline as well as with afternoon costumes. With such chapeaux the hair must be dressed very full at the sides and back and low on the top of the head. Many coquettish little curls are required to fill out the space under the curved brim, and the whole effect is exceedingly picturesque.

In fact, all along the line of dress the woman of today is not a fashion plate; she is a picture, and it is not impossible that her whole attire may have been copied, so far as modern exigencies and tastes permit, from a painting of long ago. Another hat, which is signed Lewis, is a huge affair tightly covered with cloth of silver or in a greenish blue hue. A subtle skin encircles the very low, broad crown, and is almost exactly the shape of the old world toscan "flop," the only difference being that the big hats of today are lightly wired so that they retain their shape. They are either entirely flat plume. It is a ghost of its alert erstwhile buoyant self and is to be recognized only in the pretty quirts and graceful little plumes at the ends of the feather—a kind of aftermath of the old time plume.

For the really severe morning tailor makes the round semi-cloche the more appropriate shape, and in the new development it is nearly always made with a low, broad crown. The reign of the cavalier hat, that turned up abruptly at one side, was short as it was brilliant, and this fall the shape has entirely disappeared from the world of fashion. It is a little early to say what will and will not be approved in winter millinery, but it seems certain that very large and wide toques will again be in favor and draped thro' corners or oval turbans, and there is a small hat on English walking lines that is very good style. The toques will be worn by elderly women. Silk of a heavy ottoman variety and satin are much employed fabrics for hat coverings, and tulle felts of exquisite softness and skinkiness are very charming creations. A taupe felt at Cartier's is a model in a huge sailor shape. An irregular double row of feather-tufts is around the crown, and shaded wings are placed at the right side. The brim rolls up a trifle at the left, obviating in a slight degree the other-wise mushroom tendency. Indeed, all the hats are stunning this year, and it is a matter of individual selection. Apropos of hats, I overheard a friend remark yesterday, "If I didn't have to bother about new hats these glorious autumn days would be dreams of bliss." Isn't it strange how much satisfaction some women get out of trau-son herd. And it certainly does. It is such a fine excuse for common herd takes care of that. I thinking about themselves, also for making people think about them. Lots hat at the early age of three. I can remember now the passion of rage and injustice that seized me when my older sister was carried into the nursery wearing my last bonnet. I can feel that blinding desolation of impotence, that wonder as to why such things should happen. I had done nothing, and they had taken my bonnet from the drawer and decked my sister in it. A moment before I had been happy, playing with my blocks; then nurse entered, and I recognized the pretty sister. My sister had no right to it, but I had no one to stand up for me. No one thought my trouble mattered. I tried to put my own bonnet from the head and found myself being carried kicking from the room in disgrace. I in disgrace—I a martyr, the faithful owner of the bonnet! Now, there was a real trouble brought about by no fault of mine. But as I was only three I was not allowed to brood over it. If it had occurred now, sympathetic friends would have helped me to keep unhappy about it for years.

The Fashionable Pelts.

To talk of pelts, judging from the display of furs seen in the shops we are going to have another season of glowing furs. Black or dark brown pelts are in the lead. Sable, as usual, is first choice, with mink as a strong second, but when these skins are beyond one's means lynx and fox are two fine standbys that serve admirably. Pointed fox, however, is never a means to an economic end, for it is one of the most exquisite and expensive of furs. The set illustrated is a model of the latest design. In the light furs chinchilla is always one of the temptations, and coming without the tails will be worn for "dress up" occasions. As to lines, the new styles are shaped more to the back and shoulders, and in coats the short waisted and long skirted effects are most favored. As I said last week, the directoire and empire ideas hold good in the realm of furs, and many are the smart trimmings of braid, lace and buttons that will adorn the garments of the winter. Caracal coats of three-eighths lengths are trimmed with braid and fillet soutache, and fastenings are arranged under choux of liberty silk.

In connection with soutache one of the leading trimmings of the winter will be the mixture of soutache braidings with raised embroideries in self colored silks. When I speak of fine soutache I mean a tiny braid very little thicker than a coarse thread, and when it is arranged in an elaborate pattern it is most effective. With the aid of a good design braidings and embroideries can be accomplished at small cost. Among the latest trimmings to be bought in the shops are hand-made embroidered effects on lace done in rich color schemes. The directoire and empire boleros, with or without girdles, are favorites with designers, and another pretty variation is a harness-like piece of corsage adjustment cut low and square in the neck that extends just below the waist line, held by straps over the shoulders and fastened in the back. The materials employed in carrying out these designs are generally a coarse net or lace heavily embroidered, sometimes in gold and pearls, sometimes in jet or in colored bugles and beads in gleaming iridescent colors and in silks and metal threads. These garnitures will be found useful for the making over of last year's gowns, as well as for the adornment of this season's wardrobe. The pretty little accessories are adapted especially for the embellishment of the short waisted, high skirted frocks.

CATHERINE TALBOT.

Fashions and Philosophy In a Single Breath

THREE piece suits are the proper thing for the street this season. Of course in the morning one puts on the tailor made with the plain coat and the stiff shirt waist, but in the afternoon something more dressy is required. Long dresses are out of the question for street wear; they are used only for teas, formal calls, receptions and the like, and then they are made so long that walking in them is an art. The well dressed woman has a cloth gown which just escapes the ground, and over it she wears a three-quarter cut-away coat to match. This gown is made on the new princess model, with a short waisted effect, cut low to show a thin net girdle, which has tight fitting sleeves reaching well over the knuckles. The bodice of the gown is trimmed with stitched strappings or hand embroidery. The coat fastens with one or at the most two buttons, and it is extremely cutaway. The hips are fitted as snugly as possible.

A Smart Hat.

Nothing is smarter for morning wear than a hat of black bengaline trimmed with the same material and lined with a contrasting shade. Moss green hats trimmed with silver gray are also another very smart novelty.

That peculiar bright apple green is now in fashion again, and it is particularly good in empire satin evening gowns trimmed with gold thread embroidery. This shade, while it is trying to the skin in the daytime, has just the opposite effect in artificial light. For the matter of that, even a dark woman could wear it if she followed the almost universal custom of treating her skin to an evening complexion composed of liquid white covered with pure white powder.

Do not be shocked, messieurs. This sort of thing is done by nine out of ten women whom you admire, thinking they have such dazzling fair skins. Yours might look even better if you treated it in that way.

I'm happy to say that the skirts of tailor made have come down a bit. I'm sure there was never anything picturesque in the sight of a middle-aged woman with her skirts up to her shoe tops and an enormous hat planted on the back part of her head, and that's the sort of thing you saw all the time last winter in the streets of New York.

I would like to give a word of advice to the short woman. "Go easy on the ruff and neck rashes." There are several shades of these meant to correspond in proportion to the woman who wears them, and I've noticed that the short girl never fails to choose the largest and most extreme pattern. Likewise this summer she wore the largest "Merry Widow" and the widest striped effects. Think of yourself in proportion to what you buy, my dear madame, and you will present a smart, harmonious effect instead of being like a hat on legs or an animated neck ruff.

I remember last winter a friend, a charming little blond, bought herself a new set of furs. And what do you suppose she picked out? A very modest set of black lynx, reaching down to her feet, and an enormous plumed mink. Later she added to this a big top of the same fur. When her small face peeped out from under this framed in the middle of her head her neck, she resembled one of those strange artificial and all size effects of stage and style had disappeared.

The Human Mollusc.

There is a play here in New York called "The Mollusc" which is a very funny one. It is a comedy about a man who is a mollusc, and it is a very funny one. It is a comedy about a man who is a mollusc, and it is a very funny one.

A human mollusc is a very funny thing. It is a human mollusc, and it is a very funny thing. It is a human mollusc, and it is a very funny thing. It is a human mollusc, and it is a very funny thing.

around them just as slowly, but surely, by these methods as if they were out and out tyrants. More than that, while they are working mischief they even get cooed and puffed for their helplessness by those who don't see through their little game.

Have you a mollusc in your family? I have no patience with either a woman or a man who talks "shop" all the time.

I take that back in a certain degree. Sometimes the man who talks shop, poor fellow, has worked so hard all his days that he has had no time for education, books, music and that sort of thing. But the woman who talks shop is usually another type. She is the highly educated coquette who thinks only of herself and what she can do. The rest of the world doesn't count, because she is not interested in it.

You call on one of these women, who happens to be a school-teacher, and the conversation from first to last is on the subject of education. You can like it or not—that is all she wants to talk about, and you can either listen or go away.

Mollusc people are perhaps the worst offenders. I have a friend who will discuss B. D. statistics when the soup is burning, the children are screaming, and her visitor doesn't know one note from another.

Autocrats, of course, live for the stage. When they have finished their act they are the same old thing. They don't care a rap for their audience, and they don't care a rap for their own art.

Some world-travelers, I think it was, said the remark that in America conversation was a lost art. In the saloons, he said, instead of wit and epigrams each woman delivered little monologues on herself and her doings.

Sometimes I think the fault lies with the women themselves. They are so busy with their own lives that they don't have time to think of others.

But if we want to be popular and have a lot of friends, we must learn to enter into their lives and stop thinking of ourselves and our own aims all the time. Some Frenchman, I think it was, said the remark that in America conversation was a lost art. In the saloons, he said, instead of wit and epigrams each woman delivered little monologues on herself and her doings.

sometimes she was allowed to furnish what she had to say, but more often she was interrupted by some other woman who wanted to tell about her husband and was afraid if she didn't hurry she wouldn't get it all in. A charming picture truly!

Four Others Injured by a Cave-in of Loam at Holyoke

HOLYOKE, Oct. 3.—One man was killed and four others injured by the cave-in of a pile of loam at Riverside park, this city, this afternoon. The man killed was James Brown, 59 years old, a laborer who had a wife and eight children. He died from suffocation. The injured men were also laborers. The most seriously hurt received a broken ankle. All were employed by the park commission and were sitting down when the pile caved in, burying Brown.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Attacks Gov. Haskell's Letter on Creek Indian Lands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt today gave out for publication a letter received by him from R. L. Shurtzoff of St. Louis in which the writer declares that Gov. Haskell's statement in his letter of Sept. 30 regarding the latter's connection with the Creek Indian lands is so imperfect that it is entirely misleading.

The letter follows:
"Dear Mr. President:—I notice in Gov. Haskell's letter, dated Sept. 30, the following statement:
"Yes, I believe I am a defendant as to certain government town site lots in one of nearly 11,000 suits that you have had brought against as many different honorable and high-minded citizens of this state during this presidential campaign year and you will not undertake to deny that petty politics for the purpose of republishing about twenty thousand Indian voters your sole motive for having those suits brought, and I charge you with knowing that there has been no delay in these cases except that occasioned by the court's deliberations, taken by himself as time he deemed necessary to consider whether or not there is any merit in the petition filed by your attorney."
The above statement regarding the town site suits, is so imperfect that it is entirely misleading. All those suits in which Gov. Haskell is defendant except one were in 1895, prior to the admission of Oklahoma as a state. He is charged with direct participation in the frauds through which the Indians were deprived of their property and the bills seek to hold him personally liable for the injury thus inflicted. He has not answered to the merits in a single case but all pleas filed by his attorneys are purely technical and necessarily dilatory in effect.

"Mr. Holt, attorney for the Creek nation and myself have many times urged a hearing on the merits of this case and I have personally proposed several times that they file answers in the cases, in order that a hearing might be had upon the merits and the cases disposed of. These suggestions have never met an affirmative response and the result is that the cases have taken the regular course on a heavy docket. We have announced several times in open court and otherwise that we are ready for an immediate hearing in any and all suits filed. This has been done with a view of obtaining a speedy adjustment of the controversies, and in order to give every person charged with a primary liability an opportunity to acquit himself of such charge if possible without delay. Without cause could have been pursued without any violation of ultimate rights as jurisdiction over the parties and subject matter cannot be waived in the federal courts, but for reasons probably sufficient to themselves it has not been approved.

JAMES E. O'DONNELL

Nominated for Senator in 8th District by the Democrats

At the democratic convention of the eighth senatorial district held in the Associate building this afternoon, Rep. James E. O'Donnell was unanimously nominated and Humphrey O'Sullivan was elected by acclamation a member of the state central committee.

The senatorial convention was called to order by William J. McCuskey and Thomas P. Fitzgerald was chosen chairman and E. J. Ryan secretary.

While the convention was entitled to 35 delegates there were but 19 present. Warren P. Blodgett placed the name of James E. O'Donnell in nomination and the latter was unanimously nominated.

Mr. O'Donnell was escorted to the convention and addressing the delegates thanked them for the honor bestowed upon him and asked for their assistance in electing him. He spoke very highly of Senator Hibbard, his opponent, but said that there were things in Mr. Hibbard's political career which he would discuss at a later date. He added that during his campaign he will cast no reflection upon any person or thing excepting the public record of his opponent.

Just before the close of the convention Andrew E. Barrett, chairman of the democratic committee, made a motion that some action should be taken by the body relative to the fifth convention.

JURY DISAGREES

So Rumor Has it in Franklin Hotel Case

The jury in the Franklin hotel case returned a sealed verdict last night at the superior criminal court at East Cambridge and the verdict will be opened when court convenes on Monday morning.

The jury went out at 10 o'clock Friday morning and its failure to report an agreement made stronger an already strong sentiment that the twelve men and true would disagree.

It seemed to be in the atmosphere about the court house in East Cambridge that it would be either an acquittal or a disagreement and the odds were in favor of an acquittal.

The defendant, James F. Holden, expects an acquittal, or, at the worst, a disagreement, and should it prove to be a conviction he would be a painfully surprised man on Monday morning.

At the office of Coakley, Coakley & Sherman, in Pemberton square, Boston, a reporter for The Sun, this forenoon learned that the jury had returned a sealed verdict. Daniel Coakley was counsel for the defendant and he feels that it will be either an acquittal or a disagreement.

On the heels of these expectations comes a rumor from another source that the jury has disagreed and it but remains to be seen if the rumor is true.

HANGED HIMSELF

Isadore Hebert of Fourth Avenue Committed Suicide Today

Isadore Hebert, aged 26 years and a popular young man among the French American residents of this city, ended his life this morning by hanging himself in the cellar of his home, at 89 Fourth avenue, Pawtucketville. Friends and relatives of the deceased are unable to give any reason for the rash act, for Hebert's home life was exceptionally happy. He had good employment and was enjoying the best of health. The only cause that can be advanced is a temporary aberration of mind which he suffered this morning and led him to commit the deed.

The fact that his home life has been happy is vouched for by neighbors and he was considered an exceptionally quiet young man thinking a great deal of his wife and four small children.

Last night relatives from Salem called at the house and he and his wife and the visitors spent the greater part of the night playing cards. It being about 2 o'clock this morning before they retired.

Hebert arose at his usual hour this morning and according to what his wife had to say to a representative of The Sun, he appeared to feel all right and there was nothing in his demeanor to indicate that anything out of the ordinary was troubling him.

He ate his breakfast and shortly after six o'clock left the house for his work at the Filling Shoe shop in Schaffer street. He had been gone but a short time when he returned to the house and kissing his wife and children said: "I guess I am pretty near done now." Mrs. Hebert, at the time, did not realize the meaning of his words, and gave them but little thought.

After kissing the family, Hebert, who thought, went out of the house and pretended to start for work, but he had evidently gone down cellar. The door leading to the cellar from the hallway is directly opposite the door leading from the kitchen into the hallway.

About seven o'clock Mrs. Hebert started to leave the house to purchase some meat and vegetables for dinner and as she passed into the hallway noticed that the door leading into the cellar was ajar. She closed the door and then made her purchases at a store nearby.

About 7:30 o'clock she went down cellar to get some wood for the fire and was horrified to find her husband's body suspended from one of the braces of a floor joist. The cellar is very low studded and in order to cause death Hebert had to double up his feet and hold them drawn up until strangulation set in. When found, his feet were resting on the ground and his neck was caught in a slip noose of light leather belting somewhat similar to the belting used on sewing machines.

Mrs. Hebert shouted at the top of her voice and her cry attracted the attention of her brother, who was upstairs. He ran down stairs and cut the strip of leather. Life was extinct.

Undertaker Albert was notified and took charge of the body.

Hebert is survived by a wife and four children, a mother, four brothers and five sisters.

Friends of Hebert are unable to understand what tempted him to end his life and speak very highly of him.

BIG AUTO RACE

Held in Ward Two This Afternoon

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon the big auto race in ward two was started and the twenty-nine teams that have entered will race around the course twenty-five times in an endeavor to secure one of the prizes.

Great interest has been manifested by the young and the old of the ward and all are out to make it a success.

The race is to be run at the instigation of the Misses Donohoe and Miss Crevier, the young ladies who presented the silver cup and it will be the banner event of the amateur circles if it is run off without an accident.

The prizes were all in at noon today, and they encompassed a varied list of articles from the silver cup to a watch (see).

There will be official starters, official scorers and last of all special policemen who will patrol the course.

LARCENY CHARGE

Former Insurance Supt. Under Arrest

PITTSFIELD, Oct. 3.—John Reed, formerly superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company at Waltham was arrested here today charged with the larceny of $470. It is alleged that he collected this sum from the insurance company for a beneficiary and failed to turn it over to the latter. The police state that Reed had admitted to them that he took the money but said that he had no intention of stealing it, planning to pay the sum to the beneficiary later. Reed, who is 45 years of age and has a wife and two children, has been in Pittsfield for the past few weeks being employed most of the time as a dry-goods salesman.

CANNOT AGREE

Judges at Odds on Injunction Plank

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—Judges Hilbert and M. H. Ross of the United States circuit court of appeals announced today that they were unable to agree in the matter of the injunction sought by the Southern Pacific and Oregon Pacific railroads as to the fixing of freight rates on lumber by the inter-state commerce commission. The facts involved, including the right of the inter-state commerce commission to establish and alter freight rates, will be certified to the supreme court of the United States.

FUNERALS

BENNETT.—The funeral of Mrs. Lydia Bennett took place from her late home, 655 Middlesex street, among the large attendance were many friends and relatives from out of town. Services were impressively conducted by Rev. Dr. Chamberlain of St. Anne's church, who performed the regular Episcopal ritualistic services beginning with: "I am the resurrection and the life."

Among the floral tributes, from Miss Mary Lewis, spray of white roses, from a friend; spray of white plums, from W. W. Lewis and family; spray of roses and plums, from members of the bereaved family of the departed one.

The interment was in the Lowell cemetery in charge of Undertaker C. H. Molloy & Son.

The deceased was one of the best known of the colored residents of Lowell; where she has resided for a number of years. She was highly esteemed by everyone who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, owing to her cheerful and sunny ways and also due to her many excellent Christian traits of character.

McGLYNN.—The funeral of Bridget McGlynn took place this morning from her late home in Reservoir street. The remains were conveyed to St. Michael's church where, in the presence of a large congregation of mourners, a requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Francis J. Mullin. The choir under the direction of Mr. Thomas Boulger rendered the Gregorian chant. Miss Carolyn White presided at the organ. The interment was in the Catholic cemetery where the celebrant of the mass performed the committal rites at the grave. The pall bearers were Charles Callahan, John Duggan, George McElroy, Hugh Callahan, Frank Burns and Michael Enley. The floral tributes were costly and beautiful. They included the following: Large plume of roses from Mrs. Margaret Duggan and family; mammoth wreath of roses from Mrs. Cassidy; large wreath on base from the employees of T. F. Duffy; large cross with inscription "At Rest" from the employees of the Tremont cloth room; wreath of roses and asters from Agnes and Mary Burns; large spray of 63 asters from the Misses Rita and Adelle Welch; spray of 63 asters from Mr. and Mrs. John Duggan; spray of 63 plums from Mrs. Charles W. Shoppell; spray of 63 plums from Mr. and Mrs. John Cox and family; large spray of plums from Mr. Enley and family; by both Mr. Enley and family; spray of roses from Mrs. H. C. Coburn. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Funeral Director T. J. McDermott.

NEW CONVENTION

To Be Called by Democrats of the Fifth District

Lawrence Democrats Wild With Indignation Because of Disloyalty of Men Who Named Ames—Matter May Go to the Ballot Law Commission

The Lawrence Eagle today says: If the democratic congressional convention held at Lowell yesterday was legal then the democrats of the Fifth district were treacherously sold out to the republicans.

But the claim is made by democrats well versed in political lore that the convention was illegal owing to the fact that the legal call was not read at the opening. It is also claimed that no call was issued for the convention. If this is true then it will be necessary to hold another convention and in that event it is safe to say that the action of the convention yesterday in endorsing Butler Ames, a republican, will not be repeated.

Democrats throughout the district were wild with indignation last night when they learned of the manner in which they had been betrayed by their delegates to the Lowell convention.

It is true that there was no avowed candidate on the democratic side for the nomination but one could have easily been found. As one prominent democrat said last night: "That convention should have nominated a democrat if only to help out the rest of the ticket."

Mr. Ames was not allowed to have everything his own way because a number of delegates held a rump convention and nominated ex-Senator Joseph P. Flynn of this city as the democratic congressional candidate. The nomination of both Flynn and Ames was illegal if the convention was not held in accordance with the provision of law.

Flynn was not a candidate for the nomination and he stated last night that he was surprised that his name was used. He was indignant at the action of the convention in giving way to a republican and denounced the delegates who betrayed and confidence placed in them by their party. Flynn said that he heard rumors at the democratic state convention to the Fifth district democracy was to be sold out.

A prominent democrat who holds a state office and was accused of helping to swing the convention to Ames, stoutly denied last night that he had any hand in the betrayal. He claimed that he rode into Boston yesterday morning with Mayor Bruce and did not return to this city until the afternoon. He said he had absolutely nothing to do with the congressional convention. He did say that although he was appointed to office as a democrat that he was deeply interested in the Cole campaign and did all he could to swing Lawrence for Cole, because Cole had been instrumental in securing him an advance in salary.

If it can be proven that the convention was illegal influential democrats will start a movement which will result in another convention being held at which a democrat will be named to oppose Ames. The call for the convention will have to be issued by the members of the democratic state committee for this district. They are James E. Donoghue of this city, Correllus Cronan and Edward Gallagher of Lowell.

BRYAN IS MISQUOTED

Republican National Committeeman Denounces Party Platform

Line has been offered in this campaign and adds that there would be "interminable wrangling as to what constitutes a reasonable profit."

This morning's World-Herald says that the words complained of are not a part of any speech of Mr. Bryan's but a part of the trust plank of the republican platform.

Mr. Bryan said:

"A good many unfair things have been said but nothing more unfair than that said by Mr. Rosewater. To accuse me of writing the language of the republican platform is an outrage he ought to apologize for. Mr. Rosewater is right, however, in making fun of the language. He is right in saying that 'nothing prettier in the catchall line has been offered in this campaign.'"

"In all tariff legislation the true principle is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad together with reasonable profit to American industries."

In regard to this the Bee stated editorially:

"Nothing prettier in the catchall line has been offered in this campaign."

6 O'CLOCK BREAKING RECORDS

Auto Drivers Leave a Trail of Injured and Dying Men

Racing Machines Were Hope- lessly Wrecked — Fearful Pace Maintained by the Drivers — Police Officer Struck by a Car and Seriously Injured

BRIGHTON BEACH RACE TRACK.

—N. Y., Oct. 3.—With a trail of injured and dying men and hopelessly wrecked racing machines behind, six of the twelve automobiles which started in the twenty-four-hour endurance race at the Brighton Beach race track last evening were still in the mad whirl at 6 o'clock today. Apparently no danger was too menacing to the daring pilots at the steering wheels of the flying machines. As a result all previous records had been left far in the distance, and it was apparent that if the terrible speed of the leaders was maintained to the end nearly if not quite one hundred miles would be added to the 24 hour figures.

The fearful pace maintained from the first hour shivered up every existing record, the four leaders at the end of the tenth hour being in advance of the best previous mark from 30 to 40 miles. This was not accomplished, however, without a fearful demolition of cars and collisions and spills in which driver and mechanic escaped death by the narrowest margin. In the third hour a piling up of racing machines going at better than fifty-five miles an hour was averted as by a miracle, four cars grouped closely together being thrown into confusion by the crossing directly in their path of M. G. Fickett, special patrol officer. Three of the cars managed to avoid the dodging figure on the track but Robertson's machine struck him with fearful force and hurled him sixty feet. He was picked up unconscious and is now in a critical condition at a hospital. All the other injured are drivers and mechanics on the racing cars.

None of them is seriously hurt. The mishaps crowded fast on another through the night. The French car, 14, catching fire in the seventh hour and the Italian entry, 15, crashing into the fence soon afterward, retiring both for the remainder of the contest.

No. 4, which had been smashed in the mishap resulting from the running down of Fickett, remained off the track six hours undergoing repairs but re-entered the contest in the ninth hour. The Italian entry driven by De Palma and the American car driven by Chevrolet were next to come to grief, the former cracking two cylinders and the latter freezing its bearings. The Italian car retired in the eleventh hour and the American car in the seventh. In the fourth hour, however, the American entry No. 9 had been sufficiently repaired to re-enter the contest but was forced to retire again after going only three miles.

At 6 o'clock the field had been reduced to six cars by the curcuring of No. 7 in the eleventh hour and of these only the first four were keeping up the lightning pace. The accident to car No. 7 was caused by the explosion had been badly cut up. It was the intention to suspend the race until ten o'clock. This would bring the twenty-four hours to a close at ten o'clock tonight.

The score at the end of the twelfth hour was:

No. 5	613
No. 6	612
No. 8	565
No. 2	562
No. 11	413
No. 4	245

The best previous time was 556 miles.

Policeman Fickett, who was struck by a racing car and seriously hurt during the night, was reported as showing slight improvement today. His condition is extremely critical, but the surgeons at the hospital where he was taken said they believe he now has a chance to recover.

As a number had been forced to withdraw from the track before the end of the twelfth hour and while the Strang, Robertson, Winters, Mitchener (who had been substituted for Cole) and Lahwell were fighting it out in every mile a small army of machinists and repairmen were struggling with the disabled racing machines Nos. 4, 14 and 9. No. 15 had been so badly damaged by its huddling of the northeast fence that three new wheels and a new engine, pump and radiator had to be put in. Laurent's car, No. 5, was even in sorer plight. A breakfast trip to New York and back to bring a new front frame and axle had been found necessary. In the case of Chevrolet's car, No. 9, new front wheels and steering apparatus had to be put in. Nos. 3, 7, 13 and 14 were out for good and all, however, their damage having been judged irreparable within the time available.

When the race was resumed after the two hours' intermission, the American car, No. 1, driven by Young and Doty, which had been prevented from starting by a collision with Michener's car early last night, appeared as a fresh contestant. Michener, who also had been temporarily out of the race, reappeared at this time in No. 2, replacing Cole who had been injured. According to some of the drivers who witnessed the accident to Cole, the driver of a French car, in the seventh hour it appears that his escape from death was almost miraculous. When his car ablaze and going at a 50 mile clip overturned he was caught under it and held there. A blow of the diving wheel against his chin knocked him unconscious and had it not been for the driver and mechanic of No. 15, who stopped their car and jumped out to pull him from under the blazing wreck, he must have been burned to death.

Score end of 14th hour:
No. 6, 710 miles; No. 5, 705; No. 2, 690; No. 8, 650; No. 11, 395; No. 9, 311; No. 4, 250; No. 15, 225.

JUDGE KNAPPEN

Gives Decision in Calu- met and Hecla Co.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 3.—Judge Knappen in the United States court here today handed down an opinion in the case of Albert Bigelow, president of the Osceola Consolidated Mining Co. and the Calumet & Hecla Mining Co., against the Calumet & Hecla Co. and the Osceola as joint defendants stating it as his opinion that bills of complaint should be dismissed. The Osceola Co. which was cited for contempt of court is found not guilty. This is a victory for the Calumet & Hecla. The defendants are awarded costs in the case.

ARREST SAUBRES

Colored Man is Held for Murder

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Stephen Saubres, colored, of Tall Bottom, Ga., was arrested in Cambridge today charged with the murder at Tall Bottom of William Dill, also colored. According to the police Saubres has confessed to the murder and has announced his willingness to return to Georgia without extradition papers.

SACRED HEART CHURCH
Last evening in the Sacred Heart church the usual services for the first Friday of the month were celebrated and a large congregation was in attendance.

Plans for the coming reunion of the parish to be held October 7 are practically completed and all indications point to a very successful event.

FROTHINGHAM WINS

Nominated by Acclamation for Lieutenant Governor

HON. EBEN S. DRAPER.

He Received 754 Votes on the First Ballot, and Then Cole and Luce Withdrew — Draper the Choice for Governor — The Balance of the State Ticket

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The delegates to the state convention of the republican party in Symphony hall today found before them for the first time in many years an active contest for one of the chief places on the state ticket awaiting their judgment, for three prominent aspirants for the lieutenant-governorship nomination having carried their campaign from the caucuses to the floor of the convention. The other places on the state ticket, including that of governor, were uncontested and the choice of two presidential electors at large was expected to be made without contest, while the adoption of the platform drawn up by the regularly appointed committee appeared to meet with no opposition.

Lieut. Governor Eben S. Draper was to be favored by advancement to the leadership while the remaining members of the present government were all candidates for re-nomination and were expected to be placed on the ticket this year without change.

Seeking the position on the ticket second to Mr. Draper were John N. Cole of Andover, speaker of last year's house of representatives; Louis A. Frothingham of Boston, a former speaker; and Rep. Robert Luce of Somerville. Before the opening of the convention all three candidates held to the stands taken by them respectively following the state caucuses, Cole and Frothingham claiming the nomination on the first ballot, while Luce leaders were among the delegates explaining their position as holding the balance of power.

None of the party leaders of the state had come out openly for either of the candidates, the respective aspirants making their canvass without the recognized support of any of the prominent leaders. Although the contest for the lieutenant-governorship began in the spring and was waged with considerable warmth throughout the summer and especially during the past few weeks it roused but very little animosity among the party followers, three candidates being personal friends and frequently appearing on the same platform and at the same banquet table.

Although the convention was not called to order until after the Symphony hall started well up in the back Bay, a large number of delegates arrived in the city early in the day and by nine o'clock the streets in the vicinity showed active groups of men, heading for the hall and apparently discussing the candidates.

still in session at ten o'clock.

The convention was called to order by Chairman Doty.

Following the call to order Secretary Langtry of the state committee read the call for the convention. Rev. Frank Webster of Waltham then offered prayer.

Temporary organization was completed with the appointment of the four convention committees. Speaking for the committee on resolutions Hon. D. Champlin of Cambridge, the chairman, requested that all measures that might be offered to the committee be submitted without delay and the committee retired for another session.

The credentials committee was headed by former State Senator Charles H. Inness of Boston; the committee on permanent organization by State Senator Clinton Richmond of North Adams and the committee on ballots by Rep. W. J. Garcelon of Newton.

The platform of the convention hall was filled with party leaders including United States Senators Lodge and Crane and former Gov. John Brackett. In the front row on the platform were nearly all of the Massachusetts republican members of the national house of representatives.

The committee on credentials made a preliminary report to the effect that 1317 delegates were present out of 1550 entitled to seats and requested permission to make a supplementary report in case additional delegates arrived later.

Chairman Richmond of the committee on permanent organization then reported a long list of convention officers, the report being accepted.

Mr. Gardner was escorted to the stage and began the delivery of his address as permanent chairman.

The feature of Congressman Gardner's speech was the slight demonstration as he mentioned successively the names of Roosevelt, Taft, Guild and Draper. The delegates applauded each name, the demonstration for Roosevelt lasting twenty seconds, for Taft a minute and a half, for Guild twenty seconds, and for Draper half a minute. There was practically no cheering, the applause being confined to hand-clapping.

At the conclusion of the chairman's address, Chairman Innes of the credentials committee made another report stating that 1550 delegates were now present and that several more were expected before the balloting was begun.

Gen. Chaplain then presented his report as chairman of the committee on resolutions.

Gov. Bates began by saying: "I recognize that you recognize that I rise to discharge a pleasant duty." He then arraigned the democratic party and said that the autumn leaves now falling reminded him of the democratic promises closed by presenting the name of Mr. Draper and asked that he be nominated by acclamation.

Draper Nominated
By a rising vote Mr. Draper was unanimously nominated and a few minutes later he was escorted to the platform. He was loudly applauded and cheered.

Mr. Draper then made a brief speech of acceptance.

As soon as Lieut. Gov. Draper had finished his speech of acceptance, Rep. Garcelon of Newton moved that the convention proceed to nominate a candidate for lieutenant governor. Then came the first sign of discord in the convention. Delegate H. H. Newton of Everett moved to amend the resolution by providing that the balloting be by the Australian system, the ballots to be furnished by the state committee with the names of the three candidates upon each. The motion to amend was seconded by Delegate Mostly of Westfield. Former State Senator Frank P. Bennett of Saugus opposed the amendment in a vigorous speech. He said that he did not believe in a secret ballot and that nothing in connection with the convention should be secret. He declared that he would vote for the nomination of Mr. Luce and then he asked that every delegate should stand on his feet and show himself proud of his candidate. Delegate Newton replied that he was surprised that there should be any objection to his amendment in view of the agreement reached last night by the campaign managers of the three candidates.

Sen. Lodge Interrupted
United States Senator Lodge then stepped forward and asked for information concerning the character of the ballot. While he was speaking he was interrupted by cries of "Keep your hands off! let's have a fair fight!"

After a few more remarks by Mr. Newton a voice vote was taken on the Everett delegate's amendment. In the shouts of "yes" and "no" it was difficult to determine which had the greater volume but Chairman Gardner declared the amendment lost.

Mr. Newton doubted the vote and the poll by counties was begun, the delegates rising to record their preferences on the "yes" or "no." After four counties had been polled Mr. Newton withdrew his doubt. It was then decided to ballot in the customary way, that is, by counties.

Owing to the illness of Rev. A. E. Winslow of Somerville who had been selected to place Robert Luce in nomination, Mr. Luce stepped forward and nominated himself for that position on the ticket.

Following Mr. Luce, C. H. Bosworth of Springfield presented the name of John N. Cole of Andover.

The first ballot for lieutenant-governor was without a choice. The Total number of votes cast, 1538; necessary for a choice, 770; Frothingham 754, Cole 453, Luce 331.

The balloting for lieutenant-governor was completed and the tellers at 1:55 began to count the ballot boxes which had been distributed about the hall and the delegates registered their choice.

Following the completion of the ballot taking the candidates for the balance of the ticket were nominated by acclamation.

Balance of Ticket

The name of Secretary of State Olin of Boston, who is a candidate for a nineteenth term, was presented by Congressman Washburn of Worcester for a fifth term.

For a sixth term as auditor, Joseph Walker of Brookline presented the name of Henry Turner of Malden; while Grafton Cushing of Boston placed in nomination Attorney-General Dana Malone of Greenfield for a third term.

The convention then proceeded to the selection of president electors at large and from each of the congressional districts. The electors at large chosen were:

Former Gov. Bates of Boston and Col. A. H. Goetting of Springfield.

In all the congressional districts except the ninth, tenth and eleventh, candidates had already been named at the district conventions and these selections were ratified by the state convention today. In the so-called Boston districts the electors were chosen by the state convention as follows:

Ninth, Joseph Pettit of Boston; tenth, Milton Page of Boston; eleventh, James M. Thompson of Boston.

Cole and Luce then withdrew from the contest and Frothingham was nominated unanimously. The convention adjourned at 2:50.

A SON BORN

TO MR. AND MRS. "JIMMY" GARDNER.

"Jimmy" Gardner is prouder today than you can imagine. No victory with the gloves ever brought him the joyous pride that he is feeling today, and just because a son was born to him yesterday.

"Jimmy's" brother "Mike" says that the "kid" is a born scrapper. "I was called in to see the new arrival," said Mike, "and when I punched his toes he aimed an uppercut at me."

YOUNG MEN TO STUDY FOR THE PRIESTHOOD

Messrs. Denis A. O'Brien, James Bradley and Patrick J. Meagher, three Centralville boys, left Boston on the Steamship Canopic of the White Star line this afternoon at 4 o'clock bound for the American college, Rome, where they are to prepare for the priesthood. Quite a number of relatives and friends saw the young men off.

A BITTER ROW

Cole Charges That Rum Was Used to Aid Frothingham

BOSTON, October 3.—"We are pleased beyond expression at the reception tendered us by our friends last night, and at the evident opposition to the attempt of so-called leaders to create band wagon sentiment for our opponents."

"It is clear that Mr. Frothingham's friends are desperately trying to make a showing on the first ballot, and they have failed. The Hibbard machine did notable work for Mr. Frothingham with a numerous democratic delegation, but we remind of men in the hotel corridors and the display of red badges at the bar do not count in the deliberations of a republican convention."

"The turbulent and riotous crowd that shouted 'Frothingham, that's he,' in the ear of Speaker Cole, and but for his friends would have crowded him from his reception room, was another unfortunate incident, and one of Mr. Frothingham's managers expressed annoyance at the demonstration."

Cole Statement.

The wildest night before that the republicans ever had at the American House wound up with the promise yesterday at Symphony hall of the most rancorous struggle that ever convulsed a republican state convention.

With harmony thrown to the winds it is to be a smashing, tearing fight from start to finish.

Bedlam Broke Loose.

Bedlam broke loose, and during the evening the Springfield convention looked almost like a lawn party. The Luce men, armed with megaphones, shrieked from the balconies at the surging crowds. Long files of Cole, Luce and Frothingham men formed flying wedges, tipping each other over right and left. Hats were lost and collars wilted. The demonstration, however, was not ill-natured.

It was the busiest day that republican affairs have seen for many a year. The first announcement of the evening was that the Frothingham men had yielded to the demand of the Luce-Cole combination for a secret ballot at the convention yesterday. It is not only the first time that the republican machine has changed its program at the behest of those opposed to it, but it is the first time that the Australian ballot has been used at a convention in Massachusetts.

PEACEFUL PICKETING

In the Vicinity of the Shoe Factories in Lynn

LYNN, Oct. 3.—"Peaceful picketing" was the rule today in the vicinity of the shoe factories where some of the lasters had not gone on strike. The strikers yesterday made a demonstration of their strength but today there was no concerted effort in this direction.

Of the more than one hundred shoe manufacturing plants in the city there were not more than a dozen in which the lasters refused to work. Small groups of strikers, ranging in number from three to twelve in a group assembled outside the various factories where the strike had not reached and endeavored to persuade the lasters to remain away from their benches. How successful their efforts were could not be determined early today.

Important developments in connection with the strike are expected later in the day.

Parading was continued by the strikers during the forenoon, a line of some 100 or 200 men passing through streets of the manufacturing district. They visited the factory of the A. F. Smith Co. on Essex street where about one-half the lasters responded to the cheering and the invitations "come out" by leaving their work.

As the procession approached the factory of A. E. Little & Co. the men displayed in a window a placard bearing these words:

"Our lasters have voted to come out." It was learned that the vote of these lasters was practically unanimous but that they decided to finish the work on hand.

The coming out of the lasters waited on Mayor Porter today to assure him that they were urging the strikers to refrain from all acts of violence, to preserve order and obey all police requests.

The union has made arrangement to feed the strikers with at least one meal a day at lasters' hall beginning Monday. Lodgings will also be furnished as far as possible to those without means as a result of the strike.

There was no disorder today. Some talk is heard that individual manufacturers may close their shops as soon as the work in hand is finished, instead of trying to break the strike.

JUDGE ARCHBOLD THE DEATH ROLL

Says Sheriff is Not in Contempt Will Exceed All Previous Estimates

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 3.—Judge Archbold in the U. S. court this afternoon decided that Sheriff Charles Lane of Westchester county, New York, was not in contempt in not having delivered Harry Thaw into the keeping of a United States marshal to be taken to Pittsburgh to answer in bankruptcy proceedings.

BOMBAY, Oct. 3.—Upwards of 7000 bodies already have been exhumed by the health department of Hyderabad and the belief prevails that the total death toll resulting from the recent floods will exceed all previous estimates.

DAVIS DECLINES

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Charles Davis of Plymouth, who was nominated as presidential elector for the fourteenth congressional district at the democratic state convention on Thursday, today declined to accept on the ground that he was unable to support Mr. Bryan in 1896 and had seen no reason since to change his mind.

DEFICIT OF $2,981.46

Is Reported by the Lowell Automobile Club

When John O. Heinze, the one man responsible for the big auto race on Labor Day, told the Sun several days ago that he was $3000 in the hole, he came within a few dollars of the exact figures. The deficit in dollars and cents is $2,981.46. Mr. Heinze gave out that statement at a meeting of the Lowell Automobile club last night. The members of the Lowell Automobile club are on enthusiastic lot. There were two hundred of the club present last night to hear the statement read by Mr. Heinze. The forty-seven members were notified of the meeting but they failed to put in an appearance. They were afraid, perhaps, that Mr. Heinze would ask them to make good the deficit, but that gentleman said he didn't intend to do anything of the kind, because he knew it was a waste of time to search for a needle in a stack of hay.

He called the meeting primarily, he said to see if the Lowell Automobile club was to be a permanent institution. The small attendance, he thought would nullify somewhat against its permanency.

His statement was as follows:

Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan says he paid a printing bill of $311 to save the credit of the Lowell Automobile club and that charges for rent would put his bill up to $11. He denies that he promised to favor having the race on July 14th and did not offer any prize for any other date.

AT ST. PATRICK'S

Notes From the Church and Societies

The Holy Rosary procession will be held in St. Patrick's church tomorrow afternoon. The societies connected with the church will participate. A solemn high mass will be sung in the morning at eleven o'clock. The Sanctuary choir which has been enjoying a vacation will be in attendance tomorrow morning and will assist in the mass.

The October devotions are being held every night in the basement of the church. The devotions on Sunday afternoons will be held in connection with the vesper service.

THE C. Y. M. L.

The members of the Catholic Young Men's League of St. Patrick's will receive communion tomorrow morning at the 8:30 o'clock mass. It being the quarterly communion day. After mass a breakfast will be served in the school hall, then the members will repair to the assembly hall, where a meeting will be held. The society will present a feature in the form of a concert and dance about the middle of November. The rehearsals are being held on Sunday afternoons and Tuesday evenings in the rooms.

The "gym" class has not been formed as yet, but several names have been received from young men who are desirous of entering said class this winter. Frank Davey, the wrestler, has been engaged to give wrestling lessons to the members. He would like all those interested to attend the class and give their names so that he can arrange private lessons if they wish. A competent boxing instructor will also be engaged this year. So that the members can get the benefit of both methods of "natural" defense. The whist and pool tournament will be opened in about two weeks. The debating club which was formed last year and debated with a team representing the Young Men's Catholic association of Lawrence, has organized again this year and would like to hear from the debating clubs of the city. A series of debates will be held with Catholic societies of the state during the winter months.

MICHAEL O'NEIL

Independence League

Candidate for Gov.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—Members from the Independence league from all parts of the state gathered in this city today for the state convention of the party which was arranged to be held in Faneuil hall.

Michael O'Neil of Boston was unopposed in his candidacy for the place at the head of the party's ticket while there were three aspirants for the honor of running second to him. These were Joseph Jackson of Plymouth, John Dempsey of Fall River and Frank P. Sargent of West Springfield.

GETTING CLOSER

Pittsburg Now is in First Place

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Greater uncertainty than ever in the outcome of the almost unprecedented close race for the National league pennant has come as a result of yesterday's games. Through a double-header victory Pittsburg squeezed into first place with a lead less than a full point over New York and Chicago in third place is a single point lower down in the percentage table. Even though in second place New York still has a slight advantage as she still has four games to play before the close of the season, while Pittsburg and Chicago have only two each. Should New York win at four games the pennant would fly at the Polo grounds another year even if the other two teams play faultless ball in all their remaining schedule games.

Pittsburg today will again try her strength with St. Louis from whom she took the double-header victory yesterday while New York plays at Philadelphia and Chicago at Cincinnati.

Detroit still holds the top place in the American league, four points lead over Cleveland. Chicago by its defeat of yesterday is thirteen points behind Cleveland. The leading team will be on its home diamond today where it will meet St. Louis, while Chicago will play at Cleveland.

BIG DEMONSTRATION

TO BE MADE BY THE CATHOLICS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Preparations for the greatest demonstration of the Catholics of the United States since the plenary council of Baltimore over two decades ago, were begun at a meeting of leading Roman Catholic laymen of Chicago last night.

The event will be the Catholic missionary conference of the United States and Canada. It will begin in Chicago on Nov. 15 and end on the following Wednesday. More than sixty archbishops, bishops and mitred abbots of the United States, Canada and Mexico already have pledged themselves to be present.

YALE HONORS

Were Announced at the University Yesterday

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 3.—The entrance honors of Yale freshmen were announced at the university yesterday and with the lists came those of junior appointments. Robert Alphonso Taft, son of Judge William Howard Taft, receives a philosophical oration for work in the first half of his junior year, an honor added to the many previously announced from time to time since his freshman entrance. He also is included in the list of honor awards in English composition.

After the June examination it was announced that Mr. Taft led his class in ranking.

Mr. Taft last night was chosen vice president of the Taft club of Yale of which MAY O. Taft of the dramatic association is the president. The club will hold several parades during the campaign.

REPUBLICANS RAISE $3000.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 3.—A draft for $3000, the first instalment of a fund of $20,000 to be raised by republicans in Washington for use in the campaign outside this state, has been sent to Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the national republican committee.

CITY HALL NOTES

A permit to build a two-family dwelling has been issued to Wilfred Baril. The location is in Moody street and the estimated cost is $3000.

Mayor Farnham is at his old home in New Hampshire making preparations to move to his father and mother back to the city for the winter. The mayor's private secretary, Mr. Richardson, is attending the republican convention in Boston.

GREAT EXCITEMENT

PETER MARCOTTE

Sent Ten Months to House of Correction

Peter Marcotte, one of the most desperate characters the police have had to deal with of late, was assigned to police court this morning on a complaint charging him with assault and battery and another complaint charging him with two counts of larceny. He pleaded guilty to all three charges and was sentenced to 10 months in the house of correction at Cambridge. He was very fortunate, however, in not being charged with highway robbery which would result in a long sentence to state prison. One count charged Marcotte with assault and battery on Charles L. Caldwell in Sagar street on the 11th of September. It was stated that the prisoner brutally assaulted Mr. Caldwell by an attempt to choke him.

On the same day he held up a boy, Philip Hendricks, in Plain street and robbed the latter of $1.

One the 24th of September he was charged with larceny of clothing and relieved the latter of $1.

Marcotte was sentenced to 10 months in the house of correction on the larceny charge and four months at the same institution for assault and battery.

Old Offender

George B. Kennedy was charged with being drunk. It was his second offense during the year, but his third appearance. The court told Kennedy that his family said he was a general disturber and they wanted nothing to do with him. He was sentenced to two months in jail.

John Reed entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of drunkenness, but Patrolman Hendricks said the man was staggering drunk. He was fined $5.

James McNamee, who was released by the police on his last appearance, was charged with being drunk. He will spend the next ten days in jail.

Thomas Barrett, a second offender, was fined $5.

There were five first offenders who were fined $5 each and six drunks were released.

Edward J. Conroy, who was in court yesterday morning, found guilty of assault and battery on his wife, sentenced to five months in jail and appealed, was in court this morning and withdrew his appeal.

FUNERAL NOTICES

HARRIS—Died October 1, Francis M. Harris, aged 1 year and 3 months, child of Murray B. and Mary Harris. Funeral services will be held at No. 5 Main street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends invited, burial private. Undertaker George W. Healey in charge.

DEATHS

MERRILL—George L. Merrill died yesterday morning at his residence, 4 Kimball avenue, aged 83 years. He leaves a widow and one sister, Mrs. Josephine Garfield. For many years he had been employed by the Middlesex Woolen company. He was a member of the Highland M. E. church and Grand Union lodge, I. O. O. F.

AUDETTE—Joseph Audette died early yesterday morning at the Lowell hospital, aged 21 years, 3 months. The body was removed to the residence, 102 W. Sixth St. Deceased left a wife, Lillian F. his father, Laurent Audette, and six sisters, Mrs. Philine Soudard, Mrs. Frank Gourdeau, Mrs. J. E. Rochette, all of Lowell; Mrs. Amode Boudine of Derry, N. H.; Mrs. Desrosiers and Mrs. John Cuno, of Lawrence. He was a member of Rochambeau council, Royal Arcanum.

SANDERSON—Gladys Sanderson, aged three months, died yesterday at the home of the parents, Lewis and Annie Sanderson, 766 Rogers street.

GILLICK—Gertrude Gillick, aged one month, died yesterday at the home of her parents, Peter F. and Mary Gillick, 23 Willie avenue.

GRONDINE—Blanche M. Grondine, aged 5 months, died Thursday at the home of her parents, Onesime and Virginie Grondine, 36 Alken avenue.

At Immaculate Conception Church

Tomorrow, known as "Rosary Sunday" will be observed in all the Catholic churches of Lowell.

At the Immaculate Conception church at 10:30 o'clock a high mass will be celebrated by Rev. John P. Reynolds, O. M. I., who has charge of the Rosary sodality and the devotions. The sermon on the feast of the holy rosary will be preached by Rev. Dennis Sullivan, O. M. I. The procession of the Holy Rosary sodality will take place at the evening service when solemn vespers will be celebrated. Fifteen banners representing the joyful, sorrowful and glorious mysteries will be carried in the procession by members of the Angel Guardian sodality. During the progress of the procession the litany will be sung. Fr. Reynolds has been very zealous in promoting the devotion of the rosary and the indications are that the services tomorrow will be decidedly impressive and imposing. Rosary devotions will be held every evening during the month of October except on confession days when the rosary recital will be at the 8 o'clock mass.

The O. M. I. Cadets

The O. M. I. Cadets held one of the largest attended and most successful drills in their history last night. The drill was under the direction of First Lieut. Bernard F. McAvail of Co. M. The drill was confined to company and platoon movements. This drill was held in the Cadets' armory and was in preparation for the parade in Boston in November in observance of the centenary of the archdiocese. The Cadets received a special invitation in person from the vicar-general to participate in this parade. The Cadets will also give an exhibition drill and will intrust some military plants which they have got down to a high degree of perfection by frequent and painstaking drilling. Rev. John J. Sullivan, O. M. I., the spiritual director of the Cadets, who has trained every month and drill for the past 4 years, encouraging the members, is anxious that they will cover themselves with glory during the coming parade at the Hub. At present there are 210 names on the list of the Cadets and Fr. Sullivan is now making preparations for the forming of two new companies. He is also organizing a drum corps of thirty pieces to furnish field music. Already bugles have been contracted for with a Boston firm to be used by members of the new band.

The Cadets' Minstrels

The Cadets' minstrels, under the direction of Mr. John Payne, are rehearsing in the Cadets' armory for an entertainment to be presented there during the latter part of November. The minstrels have already received invitations to give minstrel performances in Salem, Lynn, Nashua and Lowell.

The Church Choir

The Immaculate Conception church choir will, beginning tomorrow, give the strict interpretation to the new ruling of the pope concerning church music and explaining in a recent letter from Archbishop Connolly. The proper of the mass will be in accordance with his ideas of the same.

New Sanctuary Choir

A new sanctuary choir of boys is being formed by Rev. Dennis Sullivan, O. M. I. It will be composed of boys especially selected for their musical voices and many of them will be advanced to the positions vacant by their seniors whose voices have reached the changing period.

Church Debt Collection

Tomorrow there will be taken up at all the masses the regular monthly church debt collection.

Church Improvements

The massive doors of the church of the Immaculate Conception are being re-polished and the fine panel work on the same is being prominently brought out.

The Parochial School

Rev. John Flynn, O. M. I., has charge of the parochial school of the Immaculate Conception parish. He is showing the same zeal and deep interest he exhibited when in charge of the Sacred Heart school. His work is highly appreciated by the pastor, Rev. John McKeown, O. M. I., as well as the provision of the school. Verily, Father Flynn is proving himself the right person in the right place.

Children of Mary

The Children of Mary Sodality members have already secured Associate hall for Feb. 2, 1909, for the purpose of holding a colonial party. It is expected to eclipse the highly successful Martha Washington party of last year.

First Communion Class

The first communion class is unusually large. There was an increased attendance at Sunday school on Sunday last over that of the previous Sabbath. Confirmation will be administered during June next.

At St. Peter's

The feast of the holy rosary will be observed at St. Peter's church tomorrow forenoon at 10:30 o'clock. A solemn high mass will be celebrated to be followed by a procession of the rosary sodality.

The first Friday of the month devotion was largely attended last night. At 8 o'clock this morning an anniversary requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. John Burns, at St. Peter's church for the repose of the soul of the late Margaret McWilliam Tobin.

GOV. HUGHES

To Have Specialist Examine His Throat

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Gov. Hughes will leave for Buffalo this forenoon. Dr. Alexander, a New York throat specialist, has been telegraphed to meet the governor in Buffalo this afternoon to make an examination of the condition of his throat. National Chairman Hitchcock kept the long distance telephone wires busy last evening with anxious inquiries as to the governor's condition and as the prospects of his being able to make the proposed western trip. No definite information could of course be given at that time.

Big Fire Broke Out at Winthrop This Morning

Crest Hall and Ocean View Hotels Were Destroyed — Fire Started in the Kitchen of Crest Hall — Several Cottages Also Were Destroyed — Aid Summoned From Boston, Chelsea and Revere

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Crest Hall and Ocean View hotels with three large summer cottages, occupying one of the most beautiful spots of the North Shore on the crest of the ocean boulevard at Winthrop beach were totally destroyed by fire early today causing a loss of nearly $175,000.

A strong northeast wind was blowing which swept the flames down the stretch of beach on which are many costly homes, and for a time it was feared the entire ocean-front would become a prey of the flames. Help was summoned from Boston, Chelsea and Revere and three steamers were sent from East Boston. With these the fire was confined to the two hotels and three cottages, though half a dozen other cottages suffered from the heat and smoke.

The fire started in the kitchen of Crest Hall from some unknown cause and when discovered shortly before midnight the entire back and the annex of the hotel was in flames. There were 50 guests in the hotel and these were called and all made their escape before the fire reached them. Mrs. A. C. Dumont of Cincinnati was the last person left in the house and had to be taken out by an officer. The hotel was owned by Fred Hall and cost $75,000 to build, seven years ago. The fire spread to a cottage on the north in process of erection, owned by M. H. Fowler of Hyde Park. The cottage was of cement and its cost is $900. It was totally destroyed, only sections of the outside cement walls remaining standing.

On the south of Crest Hall the fire quickly enveloped the Ocean View house which was occupied by some 25 guests. All of these had sufficient warning to make their escape, taking some of their effects. The house was erected some three years ago by Mr.

PRES. PULLIAM

Decides the New York-Chicago Game a Tie

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—After a week of deliberation President Harry C. Pulliam of the National league of baseball clubs, last night rendered a decision on the protested New York-Chicago game played on the Polo grounds here September 23. Mr. Pulliam rules that the game was a tie and that the Chicago club has no claim in equity for a forfeited game on September 24, when Chicago holds that the tie game of the day previous should have been played off.

In disposing of Chicago's claims, President Pulliam calls attention to the fact that the constitution of the league, made it impossible for President Pulliam to set a date for the playing off of the disputed game. When the protest was withdrawn the next day Mr. Pulliam says it was too late to have the game played off and this being the case, the third claim of Chicago for a forfeited game was without basis.

Mr. Pulliam then takes up the New York protest against the decision of the umpires. He described the play and says that to the disappointed Chicagoans he should have touched second base. There was no evidence to show that he did do this, Mr. Pulliam sets forth, and on the contrary Umpire O'Day claims that Merkle did not touch second base, so was forced out. The whole dispute comes down to a question of whether the umpires shall be upheld or not, Mr. Pulliam declares.

In conclusion Mr. Pulliam's statement says:

"This whole controversy hinges on a simple question: Was Merkle forced out at second base? Umpire-in-chief O'Day says he was. O'Day is no novice, and there is no reason to doubt his accuracy in his decision. As an umpire he ranks second to none. He has been before the public for twenty years as player and official and his integrity has never been questioned.

"I rule that this game ended in a tie score, and that for reasons stated above Chicago club has no claim in equity for a forfeited game.

"This ruling is subject to appeal to the board of directors and in that event a meeting of the board will be called for Monday, October 5, the hour and place to be determined later."

DIAMOND NOTES

Frank Barthelemy, pitcher of the Worcester team, may be drafted by Providence. Nothing definite will be known until the first of the month, when the drafts of players by teams of class A leagues will be made public.
The draft is not unlikely. Hugh Duffy, manager of the Providence team, said Sam French, one of his pitchers, to Pittsburg, which will leave the Providence team with a vacant place in the pitching department. Barthelemy is fast enough for the Eastern league. He has experience needed by a pitcher in that league.
Tom Catelson has certainly gotten into the hearts of the Brooklyn team and he is now one of them. After the games they take Catelson about with them and are as clammy as crickets of years standing.
There is a likelihood that Dan Duggan will be drafted by the Montreal team. The reason for this effect is in the air though nothing definite will be known of that until after the first of the month.
Wild Bill Donovan was on the job again yesterday and pitched his team to victory though he was clouded rather hard. The weather was so cold that Wild Bill thought to save himself so long as his team continued in the lead.
Tom Keady has sent word to his friends in this city that the Dartmouth baseball squad for next year will be one of the best ever turned out by the school. A letter from Keady says that the team was taken over by a few men who took good care of them and they were taken care of by a few men.
Henry Coffin, though ineligible to play this fall, was out for practice and did the pitching for the team. He is to work for three days practice. He is to be named when he comes to the team next spring he will be in the best of shape.
Coffin has written to friends here that he has passed his examinations and is now a full-fledged boxer. The management of the team as well as his friends wish him the best of luck for the present term.
Barrett has been taking a few days off and spending the time in New York. He has returned from the Big League and is ready to go into winter quarters.

Ross Had Three Good Chances to Win

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—A rattling six-round mill was boxed here last night between Tony Ross, a heavyweight Italian from Newcastle, Pa., and Morris Harris, the New York negro. But for his lack of ring knowledge Ross would have won the fight in the second round on a knockout, as he twice had the colored man on the mat for the count of nine and very nearly. Ross could not follow up his advantage and allowed the negro to clinch until he got his wind again.

In the third round Ross opened by again sending his man down for the count of eight, but once more he failed to finish the mill, and at the opening of the fourth round Harris was once more strong and came after Ross with a speed which made the Italian hunt cover.

From that time forth it was a case of Ross saving himself. Harris took no chances but tried hard to put his man away. Several times he had Ross in distress, but the knockout blow could not be landed.

CHEAPEST OF ALL.

Of all the forms of advertising, the cheapest and best is advertising in the daily newspapers. The cheapest newspapers are those with the largest circulation in their respective fields. Handbills are wasteful, expensive and of little effect. Posters are played out, because they are easily and very uncertain in durability or effect. Signboards are expensive and short lived. The Daily Newspaper is the safest, surest and cheapest of all, and the best in the local papers is The Sun, because it has the largest circulation in Lowell.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

Robert Lee Morrell, chairman of the contest committee of the Automobile club of America, announced yesterday that the Automobile club of France had completed the entry of three French cars for the grand prize race at Savannah and the Automobile club of Italy had completed the entries of two more Italian cars. Four additional entries for the light car race were also received yesterday by Chairman Morrell. The French machines are a Renault, to be driven by Sisz; a Clement-Bayard to be driven by Hautvast, and a Lorraine-Dietrich, to be driven by Duray. The Italian cars are two Itala, to be driven by Henri Fournier and Cagno.

The big international 400 mile contest in Georgia on Thanksgiving day will be Henri Fournier's first appearance in this country since 1905 and will also mark his first attempt at winning honors in a road race in America. His most notable automobile feat in this country was a mile in 51.45 seconds in a Moro racer on the Coney Island boulevard. Hautvast will be making his initial appearance in this country, but Sisz, Duray and Cagno have all competed in the Vanderbilt cup races. W. S. Hozier, an American representative of the Automobile club of America, has cabled that further entries of French cars will be received next week.

Entries for the Grand Prize race will close finally on November 1, and the entries received up to last night, given in the order they were made, were as follows: Fiat, De Palma; Benz, Hemery; Mercedes, Salzer; Mercedes, Salzer; Mercedes, Salzer; Mercedes, Salzer; American Locomotive, L. J. Derach; Lorraine, Henri Fournier; Matheson, direct no named; Renault, Sisz; Clement-Bayard, Hautvast; Lorraine-Dietrich, Duray; Itala, Henri Fournier; Itala, Cagno.

The entries received yesterday for the light car race were a Chalmers-Detroit, Aristocrat, a Cameron and an American. The latter car and will be driven by Robert Burman was named as driver for the Buick entered yesterday. Four last night for the night car race, the ten previous entries being as follows: two Gyroscopes, three Maxwellia, three De Dions and three Buicks.

NEIL BESTS MOORE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Frankie Neil, of San Francisco, beat Frankie Moore of Philadelphia, in a six-round bout at the State A. C. last night. Neil started like a skyrocket and it looked as if he would finish Moore before the limit, but he found the Quaker a rugged boy, who was always ready to take a chance and found himself with two final rounds. Moore rallied strong in the two final rounds. Neil used a wicked left hook at during the bout. The men weighed in at 122 pounds at 6 o'clock.

BARRY WHIPS JOHNSON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—Jimmy Barry of Chicago proved his merit as a hard hitter last night by hammering Battling Johnson into such submission that his managers threw up the sponge to take a chance and found himself with two final rounds. Moore rallied strong in the two final rounds. Neil used a wicked left hook at during the bout. The men weighed in at 122 pounds at 6 o'clock.

CROSS OUTFIGHTS FITZGERALD

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Leach Cross, the East Side dentist, outpointed Willie Fitzgerald in their six-round fight at the Fairmont A. C. last night. Cross out-fought his opponent in all of the rounds except the first and the fifth. Both men tried hard for a knockout. In the last round Cross staggered Fitzgerald several times with his heavy right swing, and Willie was often on the verge of going out. He rallied enough to last till the end.

200 MILE RACE

TO BE HELD BY THE LOWELL HOMING CLUB

The 200 mile race by the Lowell Homing club is scheduled for next week from Union, N. Y. The 100 mile race for young birds of the above mentioned club was flown on Sept. 20 from North Adams. Ernest E. Bailey's bird winning first diploma, W. H. Bailey second and third, Roy Stevens, fourth, Harry Lee fifth, and W. Lang sixth.

The 150 mile race was flown on Sept. 20 from Schenectady, N. Y. Ernest Bailey's bird winning first diploma, W. H. Bailey second and third, W. Lang fourth and Roy Stevens fifth.

PRIVATE HOWARD

WAS NOT GIVEN A HEARING TODAY

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 3.—William C. Howard, formerly a private in the United States coast artillery company stationed at Fort Rodman, who is charged with the murder of his wife, Ida, was not given a hearing in the third district court today. A continuance was granted until October 10.

IVY LEAF CLUB DANCE.

The annual dancing party of the Ivy Leaf club was held in Prince St. hall last night and was well attended. Dancing was enjoyed to a late hour, music being furnished by the Resident orchestra. The officers of the party were: General manager, Roland McArthur; assistant general manager, Edward Ryan; floor director, John McKelvey; assistant floor director, Edward Sanders; chief aid, Austin Saxe; aid, Arthur Whitney.

THE IRISH LEAGUE

To Hold Important Meeting Tomorrow Evening

The local branch of the United Irish league will meet tomorrow evening to hear a report from the recent convention and to consider an important communication from the national secretary.

The local officers are greatly encouraged by the grand results of the Boston convention, the assurance of the early concession of home rule as made clear by Mr. Redmond's address. They expect a considerable increase in membership and energetic work until the final victory be achieved.

A Hard Struggle

Many a Lowell Citizen Finds the Struggle Hard

With a back constantly aching. With distressing urinary disorders. Daily existence is but a struggle. No need to keep it up. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you. Lowell people endorse this claim:

Mrs. T. H. Rodgers, living at 63 Rutland St., Lowell, Mass., says: "For some time aching, nagging backaches, coupled with the most distressing pains in the region of my kidneys made my life a burden. I also had headaches, and dizzy spells accompanied by a tired, languid feeling. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I was so impressed with what was said in their favor that I procured a box from Ellingwood & Co's drug store. I used them as directed and in a few days my aches and pains vanished, and my general health improved. Doan's Kidney Pills have proven of such great benefit to me that I endorse them without hesitancy."

Per sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBurm Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Next week is Quarter Week at the Free Cent Savings bank. Deposits placed upon interest Saturday, Oct. 3.

AN OUTRAGE UPON THE DEMOCRACY.

Not for many years has the democracy of the Fifth congressional district been so deeply disgraced as it was yesterday in Associate hall, when a coterie of so-called democrats from Lowell and Lawrence carried out a conspiracy to nominate Hon. Butler Ames, the present congressman, as the candidate of the democracy.

The movement was led by Daniel J. O'Brien, backed by Andrew A. Gray, Jeremiah Murphy of Lowell, William King and others, of Lawrence.

It appeared that a certain number of delegates had arranged to capture the convention. They worked upon a preconceived plan, in which they were apparently the tools, if not, as Humphrey O'Sullivan characterized them, the hirelings of the republican party.

In spite of their conspiracy and their snap methods, it is likely that their action may be declared illegal on account of having overlooked certain legal formalities, such as the reading of the call and the notification of delegates as to the time and place of holding the convention.

The loyal democrats in the convention protested, of course; but with-out avail.

Humphrey O'Sullivan denounced the action of the miscreants in strong language; he charged them with being in the pay of the republican party and with being party traitors, all of which he considered fully justified in view of their conduct.

While party government is a necessity there must be party discipline. Men who undertake to sell out their party or betray it into the hands of the opposition should be promptly expelled so that they will not have an opportunity to repeat the offense.

The one Lowell man who disgraced himself most of all in the public eye is Daniel J. O'Brien, a man who has been the recipient of signal honors from the democratic party and who took the lead in having the convention nominate Ames, and thereby tacitly relinquish democratic principles, approve and endorse republican policies.

Next to Mr. O'Brien, Jerry Murphy, a liquor dealer, appeared to be responsible for the action of the Lowell delegates. What reward he expects may be easily guessed.

The Lawrence bunch came well organized for the purpose of nominating Ames, and the man at their head was "Billy" King, who, we understand, is chairman of the democratic city committee of Lawrence and an ex-alderman. If he represents the democracy of Lawrence then the party in the down river city is victimized by cuckoos, grafters, traitors, hoodlums and renegades, same as that of Lowell, and the remedy that is called for in Lowell should be applied also to the democratic thugs of Lawrence.

In criticizing the action of these delegates, we have no reflection to make on Congressman Ames beyond the fact that he is a good republican and a slick politician; but this attempted capture of a democratic convention by his friends will not stand to his credit as an advocate of honorable methods. That he is also a good fellow, personally, will not mitigate the offense of leaving the democrats of the district without a candidate.

It was only the day previous that Mr. Ames made a speech in a republican convention denouncing democratic candidates and democratic policies. To give him a democratic nomination under such circumstances was to endorse his views and his denunciation of the democratic party, something that must brand the democrats who would do such a thing as a lot of political renegades.

In nominating a republican for congress, the convention betrayed the cause of democracy barred the door against democratic victory or democratic protest, and in a spirit of the most abject toadyism and the basest ingratitude, crawled to the footstool of a political opponent and in the name of the democratic party turned over to him the democratic nomination for congress just as if no democrat could be found able or willing to represent the district, or as if the party had decided to repudiate all it had stood for in the past, to surrender ignominiously and go over bag and baggage to the camp of the republican party!

These democratic traitors may say they did this as a matter of political expediency in recognition of Mr. Ames' services in congress; but the rank and file of the democratic party will never accept any such bluff and rightly or not will never have any other opinion than that the delegates who voted for Ames delivered the nomination for a consideration, financial or otherwise.

It would have been amusing had it not been disgraceful to hear Mr. O'Brien while performing an act of political perfidy boasting of his democracy, forsooth!

There may have been some ground for assuming that no democrat could defeat Mr. Ames, but nobody had any right to assume any such thing. Even if Mr. Ames were invincible, that would not justify his endorsement by a democratic convention. The prohibition party can scarcely ever hope for victory in a national or state election, but it nominates its ticket in order that these who believe in its principles may have the opportunity to register their protest at the polls. It never endorses any saloon candidate. The socialists and the labor parties do the same thing without any hope of success, and if they endorsed the candidates of another party there would be no further excuse for their existence, and so it is with the democratic party. When some coterie of weak-kneed politicians see no prospect of victory does that justify their scuttling the democratic ship and renouncing democratic principles? Is such action characteristic of the record of the old fighting Fifth? Alas, ye hypocrites and cowards!

There was a time when some whitewashed democrats pandered to the county ring to the extent of endorsing the candidates for registrar and county sheriff; but when the custom was broken up and democratic candidates nominated, the ring lost its sense of security and was much more cautious about entering into corrupt deals. So would it be with the republican congressman if the democrats put up a good clean candidate against him. The republican majority has been overcome before and will be again for who can tell but that even at the present time the congressman may have lost the support of a section of his own party?

Who can tell what may come up between now and election day to cause a democratic landslide?

In order to vindicate the democratic party, therefore, we assert that every delegate who voted for the nomination of Ames in yesterday's convention should be expelled from the democratic party at the earliest moment. Let them go over to the party to which Mr. Ames belongs, so that they can extol his services and his statesmanship without giving offense to anybody, without betraying any party, and without branding themselves as an aggregation of renegades. The only expression the summary expulsion of these democrats can elicit from the rank and file of the party will be one of general satisfaction and approval, couched in some such phrase as "good riddance, it serves them right." That is what the republican party would do if it had been so outraged, and unless the democratic party maintains some discipline that will prevent such an act of political treachery by a lot of grafters and freebooters, as was witnessed in yesterday's convention, it can never hope to assert its full strength or to win the victories that it could otherwise easily achieve.

There is good ground for the belief that the convention of yesterday can be easily proved to have been invalid on legal grounds and that the stigma that would otherwise be placed on the democracy of the Fifth district may be thus obliterated by the nomination of a democratic candidate for congress in opposition to Mr. Ames, the republican.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE CHRONIC PRODIGAL

The prodigal son returned one day.

From the city's whirl, to the fields of hay.

He was haggard and worn; he had aged ten years.

Since he fled from the care of the hogs and steers.

But his clothes were cut in the latest style.

And he looked at things with a bored smile.

When the neighbors said: "He's come home to die."

He drawled: "I came home to sleep— that's why."

Next morning he gazed, with a gleeful laugh.

At his dad, who was chasing the fattest calf.

"Oh let him alone!" cried this wayward son.

"He seems to have trained for the two-wheel run."

Just pick me a salad—I don't like veal.

I never was strong for a country meal.

And a couple of chops and some coffee, dad."

Thus ordered the prodigal, thin-faced lad.

He stayed a month and he slept a lot.

In the open air, on the spars room-coat.

And his cheeks filled out, with a ruddy hue.

In the sun-kissed days and the twilight dew.

Then the city called, and his dad said:

"Pack up your wares out, ye kin come right back."

And they saw him leave them, without a tear.

For they knew he'd return like that, next year.

—Puck.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

DISGUST AT ROOSEVELT'S ANTICS

Providence Tribune: Having furnished abundant proof that he is fond of turbulence and surprises it may occur to President Roosevelt that he can create a profound sensation throughout the country, by far the greatest sensation of the campaign, by refraining from active participation in the contest for a week. And he could, of course, double the dimensions of that sensation by keeping out of the struggle for a fortnight. Just at present he has apparently taken over the management of the affairs of both the leading parties. He is denouncing Senator Foraker, lecturing Mr. Bryan, defending Mr. Taft, explaining his own policy and reviewing his own record. In other words, President Roosevelt is doing precisely what he expected to do, what it was confidently predicted he would do when the campaign opened, despite the announcement that he would not take the stump. He is in danger of overplaying his "part." If he wants to send a real thrill through the vast audience he will resort to the unexpected.

ROOSEVELT'S FALSIFICATION

Worcester Post: If there is any sense anywhere in the Taft campaign management it ought to find some way to choke off Mr. Roosevelt. For to say nothing of the larger aspects of it, his reckless vituperation cannot fail to hurt the cause among people who have appreciation of the delicacies of life, and his fairly impudent juggling of facts, so plain that a boy in his teens can discern, exhibits only faith in the limitless capacity of the people for humbug.

A sample is where he said yesterday that only four prosecutions were brought by the last Cleveland administration "under the anti-trust law," while under him, there has been a "mass of them," of which he enumerates nine, and 49 indictments under the Elkins act, not passed till 1903.

Neither in fact nor in implication are his statements correct. Olney and the Cleveland administration instituted more actions than he says, as is shown by the annual reports of the attorney-general. It fought through and developed what little virtue there is in the Sherman act, from which the supreme court exempted manufacturing business. It fought the railroad discrimination cases under the act of 1887 until the courts took all the starch out of the law, which then it took six years of republican rule to amend by the Elkins act with its fatal loophole as developed in the Standard oil case, and four years more for further amendment and then really achieved by the democrats of the senate.

Moreover, out of 205 trusts now existing, there were at the close of the Cleveland administration, according to John Moody's Manual, the standard authority, only 41. The way they have multiplied since, nearly eight times over, is the best answer to his talk about his "politics," not to mention the Paul Morton scandal, the need trusts' "immunity" and compromise, and so on. He has to admit that no one has gone to prison under the criminal sections of the law, and only claims $150,000 fines collected in seven and a half years or $20,000 a year—which they may well regard as pretty cheap license for the $1,800,000, 000 a year they have taken in tribute or waste from the country. Such results from all the noise he has made hardly qualify him to abuse predecessors.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Lord Northcote, governor general of the commonwealth of Australia, who is enroute from Sydney to China, has been welcomed at Manila by Governor General Smith, and entertained at luncheon at Malaca. Later in the day a tour of the city and its suburbs was made by the party.

Marshall O. Leighton, chief hydrographer of the United States geological survey, will, through the forthcoming report of the inland waterways commission, recommend the impounding of the headwaters of the Ohio river at a cost of $125,000,000, and submit figures tending to prove that the spending of that vast sum would be more than warranted because of the benefits that would follow. Mr. Leighton admits to two hobbies—the use of water power rather than steam engendered energy, and the prevention of the pollution of the nation's flowing streams. Urged to give reasons warranting such vast appropriations, he placed the preservation of the rapidly disappearing coal supply as one, the lengthening of the navigation season as another, the generation of a vast quantity of cheap power as another, and the prevention of disastrous floods as still another.

Miss Mary Proctor, who has become famed as an astronomer, is in England. In London she is to give several addresses, one of which will be given at the Society of Woman Journalists. Miss Humphrey Ward, the writer, is to preside and introduce Miss Proctor.

Brooks Louise Waterman Carpenter of Brookline, Mass., has just passed her 102d birthday. She was born at Warwick, R. I., and is a direct descendant of Roger Williams. She is in good health and active enough to get about unassisted and until three years ago felt no need for glasses.

Mrs. H. P. Gates has just been elected one of the six aldermen of Maple, Tenn. For several years she has taken an active interest in the education of her town and wanted to be elected alderman because it would help her in this work. She is reported to have made about the most aggressive campaign ever witnessed in Maple, if not in Tennessee.

Andrew N. Reberl has been awarded the 1908 travelling scholarship at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The problem upon which the award was based was a design for the building of an important scientific university, and Reberl's work was considered the best of the seven or eight designs submitted. Accordingly, he was awarded the travelling scholarship of $1,000 for a year of travel and work abroad. Honorable mention was given to Walter B. Kirby, also a fifth year man. Reberl came to the institute as a special student in 1906. Last year he was one of the five architectural students of the United States colleges to qualify for the final competition for the Beaux Arts award. He is now on his way to England, where he will make extensive trips on a bicycle, then going to Belgium, northern France, Italy and Rome. He is to send back sketches at regular intervals, and on reaching Rome will enter the Roman academy, where he will complete the larger drawings. These will be sent back to and become permanent property of the Institute of Technology.

There seems to be a feeling in London that Miss Terry's memoirs have virtually put an end to the various projects for a memorial to Irving. The Irving that she has pictured with exceeding intimacy and exceeding truth now seems to the English public, and especially to his fellow-players, sufficiently honored. No man is a hero to his valet; neither is an actor to his leading woman, apparently.

It seems that the American pronunciation of Rider Haggard's name is quite intelligible in his home country of England. There his patronymic is accented on the last syllable and his given name is pronounced as though spelled Reeder.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Passaconaway tribe of Red Men was held last night and considerable business of importance was transacted. Sachem George E. Sutherland was on the stump and the adoption degree was conferred on two palefaces. The warriors' degree will be exemplified on the candidates at the next meeting, and a full attendance of the staff is expected. A communication was received from the Lynn committee on entertainment of the representatives to the great council convention, Oct. 23. All brothers are invited. Entertainment on the 23d. Points of interest will be shown at 2 p. m.; parade at 3 p. m. A banquet at 10 p. m. At the close of the meeting, whist games were played and a social hour was enjoyed.

BEAT RUNNERS

Hannaford Reached the Brockton Grounds

BROCKTON, Oct. 2.—A. F. Hannaford, the well-known amateur pedestrian of Roxbury, finished his walk from Boston at 12:25 p. m. yesterday afternoon, covering the twenty-five miles in four hours and twenty-five minutes. He received a great ovation at the fair grounds as he circled the last half mile on the trotting track. Hannaford left the Boston Athletic clubhouse yesterday morning at 8 a. m., starting two hours ahead of the Marathon runners, and expected to reach Brockton ahead of the runners. He was successful, beating O'Mara, the winner of the Marathon, by ten minutes to the goal. He was accompanied on his walk by P. J. Dion of Portland.

Mr. Hannaford will be remembered by Lowell people in connection with the walk conducted by Dan O'Leary from Boston to Lowell on a Sunday of last March. At that time, with Messrs. Rogers and Callery, the local wrestlers, he completed the walk to Lowell in five hours and forty minutes. The four pedestrians received a great ovation on their reaching the city hall.

On Patriots day last Hannaford broke the world's record for the longest distance walked inside of twenty-four hours. Starting at midnight, April 18, as the clock struck twelve the following night Hannaford covered 106 miles of road in and around Boston.

NO RELIEF

Advised by a Friend to try
Dr. Grady's Pure Malt and Rye

GEORGE A. TUPPER

"I am very pleased indeed with the help that Dr. Grady's Pure Malt and Rye has been to members of my household, as well as to myself. For three years I suffered with a bad cough, and catarrh of the worst kind. I tried several medicines, all of which brought me no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. Grady's Pure Malt and Rye. I had scarcely taken two bottles when I began to feel much better, and after taking six bottles it had restored me to perfect health. It has also cured my wife of a bad cough."

Very truly,

GEORGE A. TUPPER,

John F. Foster Post, 7, G. A. R., Nashua, N. H.

NAT GOODWIN

Granted an Absolute Divorce from his Wife

PENOBSCOT, Nov. 3.—Nat C. Goodwin yesterday obtained an absolute divorce from his wife, Jessie Dermott Goodwin, known as Maxine Elliot. Judge Pike granted the decree on the ground of desertion. There was no semblance of a contest on the part of the attorneys representing Mrs. Goodwin. The decree and findings of the fact had been prepared, and were signed by Judge Pike before the parties interested left the court room, the whole proceeding occupying 11 minutes.

KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL TO WED PRINCESS OF CONNAUGHT

MADRID, Oct. 2.—Cable dispatches from Lisbon confirm the reports of the betrothal of Princess Patricia of Connaught to King Manuel II of Portugal. The princess is a favorite with her uncle, the king of England, and one of the most beautiful young women in all royalty. She possesses a mind of her own, too, for she rejected King Alfonso of Spain when he sought her hand before he fell in love with Princess Ena of Battenburg. When she learned that Alfonso had accepted her "no" and was paying court to her cousin, she said, "I was wise to have refused him, for a man who can change his affections so quickly can hardly take life seriously." But the princess regards Manuel's courtship with far more favor. Indeed, she is said to be a real love match. Princess Patricia is a close friend—in fact, a chum—of Mrs. John Hubert Ward, daughter of United States Ambassador Reid.

CARR NOMINATED

For Governor by N. H. Democrats

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 3.—The executive committee of the democratic state committee, acting under the authority vested in it by the last democratic state convention, met last night in this city and selected Clarence E. Carr of Andover as the party's candidate for governor, succeeding Judge Bingham of Manchester, who declined the honor.

Mr. Carr is at present chairman of the democratic state committee. He is a wealthy manufacturer of Andover, although educated for the bar. It is understood that he will accept.

DELIGHTFUL TRIP

ARRANGED BY THE BOSTON & NORTHERN ROAD

In response to a large number of requests the management of the Boston & Northern Street Railway company has arranged to conduct another series of excursions to Mt. Uncanoonuc, N. H., commencing tomorrow.

The mountain is located seven miles from Manchester in New Hampshire and is unique in the fact that it offers an unobstructed view on all sides.

It is one of the grandest views that the mind can conceive encompassing as it does the splendid scenery of four states, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts. One may see from its summit the presidential range, Mt. Washington and the other peaks, Mt. Monadnock in New Hampshire, the whole of the coast line of this state, Mt. Agamenticus in Maine, Mt. Ascutney in Vermont, Mt. Wachusett and the Blue Hills in Massachusetts as well as the intervening country.

At one's very feet spreads away the landscape of these states. One views the course of the Merrimack river as it winds its devious, but beautiful course to the sea. Here and there dotting the landscape rise the spires of the cities, among the woods and the foliage is wearing its most gorgeous colors. It is a sublime feast to the lover of the beautiful.

A large hotel is on the summit of the mountain with broad piazzas and a high tower. This and the inclined railway are under a new management this year which promises the best of service. While the view and the pleasures to be derived at the end of the trip are sufficient to guarantee a pleasant day the trolley trip in itself is a greatly added joy. It lies through a pretty section as could be found between Nashua and Manchester.

There is an exceedingly fine line through an unsettled country, with high, tree-tops and deep cuts, above the banks of the Merrimack river with hills rolling away on each side.

Through special arrangements reduced rates are offered for the round trip. The special excursion cars will leave Merrimack square at 9:15, 9:45 and 10:15 a. m. and return from the Mountain at 2 and 2:30 p. m. The round trip fare is $1.00.

CAMERON HELD

He Had Jewelry Valued at $1000

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—James Cameron, aged 27, of Manchester, N. H., had a fine chance to make some money yesterday, but as he did not know the value of the goods in his possession he failed to take advantage of the opportunity, and was arrested consequently on the charge of larceny from some unknown person.

Cameron had more than $1000 worth of diamonds and other gems in his pockets, and he was willing to dispose of the lot for the paltry sum of $3. He bumped into Inspector George Patterson, Detective Scripts, Norton and Angell in his efforts to sell, and they took him to headquarters.

He told the officers he had bought the goods for investment from a stranger, and he almost had a fit when the headquarters men told him just how much the gems were worth. He told a good story concerning his possession of the gems, but when arraigned before Chief Justice Boston he refused to talk after giving a partial explanation.

The police believe the gems were taken from some woman and they will make a systematic effort to locate the owner. Cameron had diamond earrings, a diamond finger ring and other small pieces of jewelry set with valuable stones.

He was bound over in $1000 for the October term of the grand jury and sent to the county jail.

HEADLESS BODY

Was Found in a Cellar in Chelsea Today

CHELSEA, Oct. 2.—A headless skeleton was found buried in the cellar in the ruins of a house on Hawthorne street today by workmen of J. W. Duff, engaged in excavating for the basement of the new Shurtleff school. The bones were beneath a large stone and gave the appearance of being there for some years, certainly long before the fire of last April. The local medical examiner was asked to view them.

The family of the late Mrs. Harriet B. Crockett, wish to express their sincere thanks to those who kindly remembered them in their recent bereavement by their floral tributes, and more especially to Mrs. Lucy Hunt for her kind and sympathetic words and flowers.

THREE JUDGES

Named on the Probation Commission

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—Chief Justice Alken of the superior court, under the authority of an act of the last legislature, appointed the commission on probation yesterday. Justice Alken named Judge Charles A. DeCourcy and Judge Robert O. Harris of the superior bench, whose terms will end in 1909 and 1910 respectively. Judge Sullivan of the municipal court, whose term will end in 1911; John D. McLaughlin, assistant corporation counsel, whose term will end in 1912, and Joseph Lee, who will serve until 1913.

The members of the commission will work without compensation, and their first duty will be the appointment of a deputy as the executive officer of the board. His salary will be fixed by the commission, which is allowed $5000 for expenses. The board will get in touch with the probation officers of the state and frequent conferences will be held with the prison commission and the state board of charities.

CHARLEY CONKLE
May Be Able to Defeat Young Prokos

If there is one man in America who can defeat Young Prokos at 145 pounds, that man is Charley Conkle of Hamilton, Ontario, and on Tuesday night in Associate Hall, the question of supremacy will be decided.

Conkle has met and defeated the best in America at his weight. Ned Holmes, War Eagle, Tremblay, Ackerman, and Wiley are among the men who have fallen victims of his strength and skill. In action, Conkle is said to be a miniature Goliath. From the time that the referee starts the match until it is finished, Conkle never lets up. As for endurance, it may be said that he has plenty of it, and Young Prokos cannot hope to defeat him simply by trying to tire him.

Young Prokos realizes that he is up against the hardest proposition of his entire career, and is training hard for the event which is to decide whether or not he is the champion of America at 145 pounds. George A. Tupper of Boston has been agreed upon as the referee.

LOCAL ARTISANS

Were Addressed by the Organizer General

The dissatisfaction among local artisans as a result of the adoption of the graduated scale of premiums in connection with the benefit funds, caused C. A. Tupper of Worcester, organizer general of the Artisans, to come to this city yesterday.

He visited the local branches and was successful in convincing the members to the new system after explaining its workings in full. Mr. Tupper spoke last night at a well attended meeting of St. Andrew's church at 7 M. A. C. hall.

GET TOGETHER NICK LONGWORTH

Teddy and Billy in the Same League

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—The final organization of the Conservative League of America, of which President Roosevelt is honorary president and William J. Bryan and William H. Taft honorary vice-presidents, was completed today by the appointment of John Mitchell, late head of the United Mine Workers of America, and Gustav H. Schwab, of New York, president of the National Council of Commerce, as vice-presidents of the league. Walter L. Fisher of this city is active president. The membership of the league now definitely includes the following organizations:

The American Civic Association.
The American Federation of Labor.
The American Forestry Association.
The American Railway Association.
Farmers' National Congress.
Interstate Inland Waterway.
Interstate Mississippi River Improvement and Levee Association.
Lakes-to-the Gulf Deep Waterways Association.

Mining Congress of America.
Missouri Valley Improvement Association.
National Association of Real Estate Exchanges.
National Civic Federation.
National Geographic Society.
National Fire Protection Association.
National Rivers and Harbors Congress.
Ohio Valley Improvement Association.

Upper Mississippi River Improvement Association.
In addition to these prominent organizations, the league announced that the presidents of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the National Drainage Congress, and the United Mine Workers of America have personally approved of the league, and these organizations are expected to unite with it as soon as formal action can be taken by their executive boards. Similar action is anticipated from other leading organizations, such as the National Irrigation Congress, which is now in session at Albuquerque, N. M. The following formal statement of purposes of the league was issued by President Fisher:

"The Conservation League of America is an organized effort to secure the effective co-operation of the people for the conservation movement. It is the concrete expression of a dominant and increasing public sentiment. Conservation does not mean merely the intelligent use and preservation of the national forests as permanent sources of national wealth. It includes, as well, the reclamation of overflooded and swamp lands, the use and disposition of the public domain, especially in connection with grazing and with mining and power development; the prevention of mineral waste, and the development and use, both for navigation and for power, not only of the great waterways of the country, but also of the source streams upon which these waterways depend."

The league presents to candidates for congress and the state legislatures a statement of principles that is purposely confined to broad and general principles about which there should be entire agreement among all whom self-interest or special interests do not control, and yet which will be useful as tests of the wisdom and disinterestedness of future legislative or administrative action. They emphasize the vigorous development and use of our natural resources quite as much as their preservation from destruction or waste; but they insist that wise development should foresee and prevent either destruction or waste, and should effectively preserve the rights and interests of future generations. The Conservation League is absolutely non-partisan, both politically and industrially. It does not attempt to define the respective functions of the nation and of the states upon this question. It insists upon the effective co-operation of state and nation to cover the entire field of the protection and development of our natural resources. It seeks to bring to this co-operation the active practical support of an intelligent and disinterested citizenship."

DROPPED DEAD

Prominent Taunton Man Was Talking to Friends

TAUNTON, Oct. 2.—Ex-Alderman John J. Kavanaugh, one of the best known men in the city, dropped dead yesterday noon while talking to some friends in front of the Crocker building.

He had complained of not feeling well a short time before, but apparently attached little importance to it. He was a member of the city council three years, and before that served three years in the common council.

Mr. Kavanaugh was prominent in secret society affairs, and had been county president of the A. O. H., in addition to being president of the local division. He was also a past chief ranger of Court Elizabeth Poole, P. of A. and of Gen. Sheridan conclave, Knights of Sherwood Forest, and was a past exalted ruler of Taunton lodge of Elks.

Wants Father-in-Law for President Again

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Oct. 2.—Theodore Roosevelt for president again eight years from now, was the declaration yesterday of the president's son-in-law, Congressman Longworth, in a speech he made on the grounds of the Tri-State exposition to a large audience that cheered the sentiment again and again.

Mr. Longworth's statement was made during the course of a eulogy and defense of the presidential administration. His first proposal that the republican leader for the next eight years be William Howard Taft.

Next week is Quarter Week at the First National Savings bank. Deposits placed upon interest Saturday, Oct. 3.

RICH WIDOW

Figures in Elopement With Harvard Man

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—An elopement in which a prominent Harvard man and the attractive young widow of a wealthy manufacturer of Windsor, Vt., are the actors, became known in Cambridge last night.

The man in the case is Elie Chartier Edson and the woman is Mrs. Arthur E. Mann. They went to Providence yesterday and were quietly married.

Edson is the son of Dr. Tracy Edson, who was surgeon of the Gloucester at the battle of Santiago. His mother was a French woman, and he was educated at Paris and at Tunis. He entered Harvard in 1904, where he took a prominent part in the affairs of the Cercle Francaise. He acted in four of the annual French plays, and was president of the Cercle in 1905, when he entertained Mme. Bernhardt. Edson got his degree from Harvard last spring. This year he has been registered in the graduate school.

Edson's secret marriage was a great surprise to all his friends, none of whom knew of his friendship for Mrs. Mann. Edson has a good income and his wife is wealthy.

DEAFNESS HEAD NOISES CATARRH AND ASTHMA

The success of our Department Specialists in Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat in treating those afflicted with the above disorders has been truly marvelous. Our treatment affords more than a temporary relief. It effects a complete cure.

Many cases of Deafness and Head Noises are caused by Catarrh. Deafness resulting from this cause cannot be permanently relieved until the cause has been removed. In other words, the Catarrh must be cured before an absolute cure of the Deafness can be brought about.

We do both. We first relieve your Deafness and distressing Head Noises, and follow this with a removal of the cause—Catarrh. Our specialists are highly trained, and usually succeed. No case is too difficult for them to treat successfully. Come to us at once and be forever cured of Asthma, Catarrh, Deafness and Head Noises, with all their attendant unhappiness, misery and danger. It costs you nothing to get our expert opinion on your case.

Elizabeth Banville, 75 Ruben St., Fall River, Mass., says: "After having tried doctors and hospitals and receiving no relief, I went to the doctors of Boston Clinic and they cured me of Catarrh on the Ear. I thank them and recommend them very highly."

Anna Garrison, 160 Robinson St., Fall River, Mass., says: "I am willing and wish you to tell everybody how much relief you have done for me. I had given up all hope of ever getting relief, but you have saved my life, and I owe all to you. Let all who are suffering go to the doctors of the Boston Clinic and I know they will be cured."

Consumption, Rheumatism, Nervous Disorders and all curable Chronic Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Blood, etc., are successfully treated and cured by our department specialists in these diseases.

BROCKTON TUBS

Won the Prizes at the Firemen's Muster in That City

BROCKTON, Oct. 2.—The feature of the fourth day of the Brockton fair yesterday was the firemen's muster, with 56 tubs entered, and the athletic sports.

The judges of the muster were: Geo. Huey, Everett; W. H. Eskine, Albion; R. L. L. R. Whitman, Cranston, R. I.; E. S. Hennessey, Robert; E. O. Whitmarsh, Braintree; Lowell E. Pollock, Salem; George H. Blatchford, Cambridge; Fred Laughton, Brockton.

The Hancock, a Brockton tub, won the first prize, making a play of 225 feet 10 1/2 inches, which was 19 feet farther than its nearest rival. During most of the day there was a cross wind from the west, but in spite of this disadvantage good results were made.

Twenty-two prizes, amounting to $1550, were hung up for the play. The first $500, the second $225, the third $150, and the fourth $100, with the other prizes ranging down to $50. There were three special prizes, including one of $25 to the engine making the longest distance to attend the muster. This was won by Excelsior of Auburn, Me. A prize of $15 for the engine playing interest to the mark of 165 feet 6 inches was won by Ocean 1 of Kingston, R. I., while a third special prize of $10 for the engine having the lowest record went to Mazonia 4 of Acushnet.

BUILDING NEWS

Contractors Are Being Kept Busy

A one-story office building with basement is to be erected by the Lowell Insulated Wire company. It is to be made of cement blocks, the dimensions to be 12x10. It will be located at the corner of Lincoln and Tanner streets.

E. Brickett is building two modern houses in Pine street.

The Lowell Packing & Provision Co. is building a smoke house on the third floor of their quarters in Market street.

Rev. Fr. DuRoi, O. M. I., who owns the building at 715 Middlesex street, is altering it from a two family house into a house for one family.

Harvey Gamble is having an addition built to his house in Butman road.

Dennis J. Conney has recently purchased the residence, 55 Elm street, from Mary H. and Mary A. Robinson.

The residence of Letter Carrier Charles Holden in Moore street, near Bleachery street, is undergoing repairs.

Mr. Michael H. Donovan is to soon have erected a four tenement block in Hampton avenue. There will be 28 rooms and the building will be 41 feet by 61 feet.

Dr. Otis Allen, has purchased for personal occupancy the residence, 279 Gibson street formerly owned by Edmund Drickett.

MR. RUSSELL'S SALES

Eugene G. Russell, real estate dealer, has the following to say in regard to the sale of real estate the past week through his office. There has been sold and the papers taken to be recorded, an excellent building lot on the easterly side of Bellevue street. This lot has a frontage of 50 feet and contains about 3575 square feet of land. The lot was sold to Chipman O. Lead-better, the well known assistant superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York. The land was sold for Mrs. Kate A. Poby of Nashua, N. H., through her Lowell representative, Mr. Royal Gates of Gates street. Mr. Leadbetter buys solely for investment. A very attractive cottage house and large lot of land situated at 1210 Gorham street was sold and the papers were passed this past week. The house was sold Mrs. Hattie Wakefield, who formerly occupied it as a home. This was sold to Mr. Emily Gamache. Mr. Gamache is already occupying his new residence. A variety store, well stocked, with reasonable goods was sold to Mr. Gamache, also. This sale was made for Mrs. Wakefield, who has been identified with the store business in this city for a great many years.

STATE HOSPITAL

Several Changes in the Medical Staff

Several recent changes have been made at the State hospital at Tewksbury. Dr. Emerson, who was assistant under Superintendent Dr. Nichols, has resigned to take charge of the new hospital for consumptives to be erected at North Reading. Dr. Holmes, who has been performing the duties of first physician, succeeds Dr. Emerson. The duties of first physician at the State hospital will be performed by Dr. Pierce.

NICHOLAS LONGWORTH

DR. T. E. HART

THE TWO RIVALS

Representative Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, has for his democratic opponent in the coming election Dr. Thomas P. Hart, a Cincinnati editor, who was nominated with practically no opposition. Dr. Hart is a powerful speaker and is popular with both the business and labor elements in Cincinnati. Mr. Longworth was re-elected to the last congress by a plurality of 7157 votes over T. H. Bentham.

AN AUTUMN PARTY

Held in Associate Hall Last Night

A very successful autumn party was held in Associate hall last night under the auspices of the Young Men's Catholic Institute of Belvidere. The attendance was very large, the friends of the members turning out in good numbers.

The evening's festivities opened with an hour of music, the program being as follows:

Selections, Calmet orchestra; song, "Dreaming," Miss Mae Whitely; song, "In Eternity," James E. Kennedy; selections, orchestra; song, "Yesterday," James McNulty; song, "Are You Singing," Miss Alice Baggart and selections, orchestra.

Dancing began shortly after 8 o'clock and continued until midnight. The Calmet orchestra furnished the music for the 15 numbers with "extra."

The officers of the party were: General manager, William P. Kelley; assistant general manager, George P. O'Meara; floor director, Michael H. O'Keefe; assistant floor director, John Tansley; chief aid, Paul M. Kelley.

TO MEET IN ROME

Tuberculosis Congress to Assemble There in 1911

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The International congress on tuberculosis met in general session today, the seven sections of the distinguished gathering having been brought to a close last night the long program mapped out for a minute study of every phase of the tuberculosis problem.

Although there were no set speeches scheduled the proceedings this forenoon were principally consumed with brief addresses. There were many things of a purely business nature, such as reports from the secretaries of the different sections. Resolutions relating to scientific questions discussed by the various sections were referred to a general committee on resolutions. This report will be made in the closing hours of the session this evening and it is confidently expected to provide heated discussion, the storm center of which probably will relate to Dr. Koch's radical principle of denying the unity of the human and bovine tubercle bacilli. Any attempt on the part of those who antagonize him in his view to place the congress on record will develop stubborn opposition. It was decided to hold the next congress in Rome in 1911.

FURS, FEATHERS AND FURBELOWS FROM PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Balloon parties are all the rage here at the gay capital, and we go "up in the air" with the greatest nonchalance, quite as if it were the usual means of locomotion. For the moment the automobile has ceased to be the excitement of our lives, and an invitation to motor out to dinner at one of the many restaurants near Paris is not as smart as a "bid" to take a trip in an airship. In these days of ballooning and aeroplaning the name of the two famous brothers Montgolfier is frequently mentioned. At school we were taught that these brothers were the inventors of the balloon, but now we are told on the highest authority that the invention is due not to the Montgolfiers, but to a Brazilian called Gusmano. We are even reluctantly forced to admit that this statement is correct, and as Gusmano will henceforth take the place of the two great Ancey paper manufacturers a few words relative to the Brazilian gentleman's career may prove interesting.

Brought up by the Jesuits, he came to Europe in 1832. John V. of Portugal appointed him almoner at his court, but the youth, of an inventive temperament, devoted his leisure hours to constructing a flying machine, no more and no less than have the MM. Wright, Farman and Von Zeppelin. In 1709 he informed his royal master that he had constructed a machine capable of traveling through the air, and the monarch, who felt interested in the youth, not only patented the discovery, but allowed him a pension. On Aug. 5 of the same year Gusmano made his first public attempt to "fly." Thousands of people, among them members of the royal family, had come to witness the performance, which took place over the Casa de India, in Lisbon. The balloon, rose slowly and, having floated for awhile gracefully in the air, knocked against one of the cornices of the Casa and fell heavily to the ground. But this mishap did not prevent the crowd from being deeply impressed by what they had witnessed. If, however, Senor Gusmano had reckoned upon being cheered he was much mistaken. The spectators crossed themselves devoutly, and the next day when he showed himself in the streets everybody avoided him, and the little boys pelted him with stones. The king therefore advised his protégé to discontinue his experiments, which explains the fact that at the time few persons in Europe knew anything about the invention. In 1724 he died penniless in one of the hospitals of Toledo. Fifty-eight years later the balloon of the brothers Montgolfier, which was the exact reproduction of that of Gusmano, floated over the city of Avignon. Now, having alread all my knowledge concerning the history of the balloon, you will probably be more interested in hearing of the wonders in millinery as set forth by the artists who make headgear a specialty.

Favorite Hats of the Hour.
There is no disputing the fact that broad brimmed hats are to enjoy a complete triumph in the winter. The best milliners of the Rue de la Paix have sent out their advanced models, and all of them are broad and flat of brim and very low in the crown. In very truth the favorite hat of the hour is almost exactly the shape of the old world tuscan "top," the only difference being that the big hats of today are lightly wired so that they retain their shape. They are either entirely flat

PONY SKIN COAT AND MUFF

THROW SCARF OF MINK

A FASHIONABLE SET OF POINTED FOX

In the brim, wider at the sides than in the front and back, or they are of a uniform width all round, with a distinct dip back and front. It is interesting to know that hats of this order are to be worn with tailored suits that are not too severe in outline as well as with afternoon costumes. With such chapeaux the hair must be dressed very full at the sides and back and low on the top of the head. Many coquettish little curls are required to fill out the space under the curved brim, and the whole effect is exceedingly picturesque.

In fact, all along the line of dress the woman of today is not a fashion plate; she is a picture, and it is not impossible that her whole attire may have been copied, so far as modern exigencies and tastes permit, from a painting of long ago. Another hat, which is signed Lewis, is a huge affair lightly covered with cloth of silver or a greenish blue hue. A sable skin encircling the very low, broad crown, and topped by a panache of bedraggled ostrich feathers that look as if they were recuperating from a severe illness. This convalescent aspect is a symptom of the up to date ostrich plume. It is a ghost of its alert erst-while buoyant self and is to be recognized only in the pretty quills and graceful little plumes at the ends of the feather—a kind of aftermath of the old time plume.

For the really severe morning tailor makes the round semi-cloche is the more appropriate shape, and in the new development it is nearly always made with a low, broad crown. The reign of the cavalier hat, that turned up abruptly at one side, was short as it was brilliant, and this fall the shape has entirely disappeared from the world of fashion. It is a little early to say what will and will not be approved in winter millinery, but it seems certain that very large and wide toques will again be in favor and draped thro cornered or oval turbans, and there is a small hat on English walking lines that is very good style. The toques will be worn by elderly women. Silk of a heavy ottoman variety and satin are much employed fabrics for hat coverings, and taupe felts of exquisite softness and silkiness are very charming creations. A taupe felt at Carlier's is a model in a huge sailor shape. An irregular double row of feather tuffs is around the crown, and shaded wings are placed at the right side. The brim rolls up a trifle at the left, obviating in a slight degree the otherwise mushroom tendency. Indeed, all the hats are stunning this year, and it is a matter of individual selection. Apropos of hats, I overheard a friend remark yesterday, "If I didn't of women entertain the delusion that have to bother about new hats these glorious autumn days would be dreams of bliss." Isn't it strange how much satisfaction some women get out of their hat? It is such a fine excuse for thinking about themselves, also for making people think about them. Lots remember now the passion of rage and injustice that seized me when my older sister was carried into the nursery wearing my best bonnet. I can feel that blinding desolation of impotence, that wonder as to why such things should happen. I had done nothing, and they had taken my bonnet from the drawer and decked my sister in it. A moment before I had been happy playing with my bricks; then nurse entered, and I recognized the pretty bonnet. My sister had no right to it, yet I had no one to stand up for me. No one thought my trouble mattered. I tried to pull my own bonnet from her head and found myself being carried kicking from the room in disgrace. I in disgrace—I a martyr, the rightful owner of the bonnet! Now, there was a real trouble brought about by no fault of mine. But as I was only three I was not allowed to brood over it. If it had occurred now, sympathetic friends would have helped me to keep unhappy about it for years.

The Fashionable Pelts.

To talk of pelts, judging from the display of furs seen in the shops we are going to have another season of gloomy furs. Black or dark brown pelts are in the lead, Sable, as usual, is first choice, with mink as a strong second, but when these skins are beyond one's means lynx and fox are two fine standbys that serve admirably. Pointed fox, however, is never a means to an economic end, for it is one of the most exquisite and expensive of furs. The set illustrated is a model of the latest design. In the light furs chinchilla is always one of the temptations, and ermine without the tails will be worn for "dress up" occasions. As to thus, the new styles are shaped more to the back and shoulders, and in coats the short waisted and long skirted effects are most favored. As I said last week, the directoire and empire ideas hold good in the realm of furs, and many are the smart trimmings of braid, lace and buttons that will adorn the garments of the winter. Caracal coats of three-eighths lengths are trimmed with braid and fillet soutache, and fastenings are arranged under choux of liberty silk.

In connection with soutache, one of the leading trimmings of the winter will be the mixture of soutache braidings with raised embroideries in self colored silks. When I speak of fine soutache I mean a tiny braid very little thicker than a coarse thread, and when it is arranged in an elaborate pattern it is most effective. With the aid of a good design braidings and embroideries can be accomplished at small cost. Among the latest trimmings to be bought in the shops are handsome embroidered effects on lace done in rich color schemes. The directoire and empire boleros, with or without girdles, are favorites with designers, and another pretty variation is a harness-like piece of corsage adornment cut low and square in the neck that extends just below the waist line, held by straps over the shoulders and fastened in the back. The materials employed in carrying out these designs are generally a coarse net or lace heavily embroidered, sometimes in gold and pearls, sometimes in jet or in colored bugles and beads in gleaming iridescent colors and in silks and metal threads. These garnitures will be found useful for the making over of last year's gowns, as well as for the adornment of this season's wardrobe. The pretty little accessories are adapted especially for the embellishment of the short waisted, high girdled frocks.

CATHERINE TALBOT.

Fashions and Philosophy In a Single Breath

THREE piece suits are the proper thing for the street this season. Of course in the morning one puts on the tailor made with the plain coat and the stiff shirt waist, but in the afternoon something more dressy is required.

Long dresses are out of the question for street wear; they are used only for teas, formal calls, receptions and the like, and then they are made so long that walking in them is an art. The well dressed woman has a cloth gown which just escapes the ground, and over it she wears a three-quarter cut-away coat to match. This gown is made on the new princess model, with a short waisted effect, cut low to show a thin net guimpe, which has tight fitting sleeves reaching well over the knuckles. The bodice of the gown is trimmed with stitched strappings or hand embroidery. The coat fastens with one or at the most two buttons, and it is extremely cutaway. The hips are fitted as tightly as possible.

The new hats to go with these street gowns suggest the Charlotte Corday effect, with a high crown encircled by a scarf of silk or satin having plaited edges. This scarf ends at the left side in a large pointed rosette, with two pointed ends, which lie flat on the hat. A Smart Hat.

Nothing is smarter for morning wear than a hat of black bengaline trimmed with the same material and lined with a contrasting shade.

Moss green hats trimmed with silver gray are also another very smart novelty.

That peculiar bright apple green is now in fashion again, and it is particularly good in empire satin evening gowns trimmed with gold thread embroidery. This shade, while it is trying to the skin in the daytime, has just the opposite effect in artificial light. For the matter of that, even a dark woman could wear it if she followed the almost universal custom of treating her skin to an evening complexion composed of liquid white covered with pure white powder.

Do not be shocked, mesdames. This sort of thing is done by nine out of ten women when you admire, thinking they have such dazzling fair skins. Yours might look even better if you treated it in that way.

I'm happy to say that the skirts of tailor made have come down a bit. I'm sure there was never anything picturesque in the sight of a middle aged woman with her skirts up to her shoe tops and an enormous hat planted on the back part of her head, and that's the sort of thing you saw all the time last winter in the streets of New York.

I would like to give a word of advice to the short woman. "Go easy on the ruff and neck ruffles." There are several sizes of these meant to correspond in proportion to the woman who wears them, and I've noticed that the short girl never fails to choose the largest and most extreme pattern. Likewise this summer she wore the largest "Merry Widow" and the widest striped effects. Think of yourself in proportion to what you buy, my dear madame, and you will present a smart harmonious effect instead of looking like a hat on legs or an animated neck ruff.

I remember last winter a friend, a charming little blond, I ought to say a new set of furs. And what do you suppose she picked out? A very wide stole of black lynx, reaching all the way down to her feet, and an enormous all-lace puff. Later she added to this a big toque of the same fur. When her small face peeped out from under this framed in the masses of fur around her neck, she reminded one of a small, shabby animal and all sensation of figure and style had disappeared.

Sometimes I think the small woman must be proportion blind.

The Human Mollusc.
There is a play here in New York called "The Mollusc," which every woman ought to see. Every family has at least one mollusc in it, and the actor that person is revealed in her true character the better for the family.

A human mollusc is one who lives by feeding on the strength of others. She is usually a woman, and she is a thing she can get some use out of, and she becomes so after awhile she even believes she has accomplished the work others have been made to do. Some molluscs are invalids, others are merely lazy tyrants; they are all of them slowly untimely and get their way by being gentle and helpless. They crush the lives of those around them just as slowly, but surely, by these methods as if they were out and out tyrants. More than that, while they are working mischief they even get coddled and pitied for their helplessness by those who don't see through their little game.

Have you a mollusc in your family? I have no patience with either a woman or a man who talks "shop" all the time.

I take that back in a certain degree. Sometimes the man who talks shop, poor fellow, has worked so hard all his days that he has had no time for education, books, music and that sort of thing. But the woman who talks shop is usually another type. She is the highly educated egoist who thinks only of herself and what she can do. The rest of the world doesn't count, because she is not interested in it.

You call on one of these women, who happens to be a schoolteacher, and the conversation from first to last is on the subject of education. You can like it or not—that is all she wants to talk about, and you can either listen or go away.

Musical people are perhaps the worst offenders. I have a friend who will discuss B flat sonatas when the soup is burning, the children are screaming, and her visitor doesn't know one note from another. Actresses, of course, live for the stage. When they have a night off they go to the theater to see some one else act. They simply can't get away from the stage place, and the narrow world it all is. Why can't women be well balanced and not go to extremes on so many propositions?

Sometimes Forget Ourselves.

Surely if we want to be popular and have lots of friends we must learn to enter into their lives and stop thinking of ourselves and our own aims all the time. Some Frenchman, I think it was, made the remark that in America conversation was a lost art. In the of the famous Paget family, Tory leaders for generations, while her husband is prominent on the Liberal side, Mrs. Gladstone has since her marriage become the most prominent Liberal hostess in London, and her wit and beauty monologues on herself and her doings, have proved to be powerful adjuncts to the cause.

sometimes she was allowed to furnish what she had to say, but more often she was interrupted by some other woman who wanted to tell about herself and was afraid if she didn't hurry she wouldn't get it all in. A charming picture truly!

But it isn't far from true. I forgot to tell you something in the fashion line which you will be glad to hear. The newest and most fashionable dressy waist is washable and simplicity itself. It is made of not trimmed with bands of heavy lace and tucked long sleeves. It is absolutely unlined and meant to be worn over a separate white china silk corset cover.

New York. KATE CLYDE.

SOCIETY WOMAN LEADER OF A NEW FAD.

Mrs. Rosalind C. Vanderbilt, one of the prime favorites in New York and Newport social circles, has developed a remarkable liking for the French bulldog and has established a large kennel of these rare canines. Mrs. Vanderbilt has won the chief prizes at the recent dog shows in this country and is determined to make the breed popular.

BEAUTIFUL WIFE OF BRITISH HOME SECRETARY.

Mrs. Herbert Gladstone, wife of the British home secretary, is a member of the famous Paget family, Tory leaders for generations, while her husband is prominent on the Liberal side. Mrs. Gladstone has since her marriage become the most prominent Liberal hostess in London, and her wit and beauty monologues on herself and her doings, have proved to be powerful adjuncts to the cause.
